GLOBAL MARKET REVIEW

The Swiss Performance Index (SPI) experienced a 6% increase for the third quarter of 2003 after a sharp August rise was followed by a strong decline at quarter end. The profit taking was triggered in part by the sudden weakness of the U.S. dollar following the G7 meeting in September. While the G7 participants recognized the need for an adjustment in the U.S. currency, it seemed obvious that the U.S. administration had put some pressure on China to allow its currency to float more freely versus the U.S. dollar. The sudden drop of the U.S. currency revealed investors' concerns about persistent imbalances in the global economy, where North America is still the only expanding consumer market. Domestic demand is still weak everywhere else, especially in Europe. Volatility in the currency market and in the U.S. Treasury market is set to continue and most likely will affect future stock performance.

The market is also uncomfortable with the idea of an implicit end of the strong dollar policy at the same time that the U.S. government is running a bigger and bigger deficit. The looming presidential election and the prospect of the continuing lack of job creation despite fiscal and monetary stimulus are already stimulating politicians' appetite for protectionism. If enacted by Congress, global trade impediments could be harmful to the cost structure of U.S. corporations. These companies have been participating heavily in the global outsourcing trend and are among the largest investors in China's manufacturing infrastructure.

SWISS MARKET REVIEW AND FUND PERFORMANCE

Within the Swiss market, the cyclical, financial and technology sectors had the best performance during the quarter, building on an already strong second quarter. Despite the sharp increase in long-term U.S. interest rates, the prospect of economic improvement supported equity valuations. While small and mid capitalization stocks outperformed the rest of the market, low trading volume and the impact of short positions being covered, were most likely more responsible than any true improvement in the fundamentals of these companies. The Fund's investment strategy has been to concentrate on finding mis-priced stocks in the mid and large capitalization segment of the market. Management increased exposure to turnaround situations, undervalued cyclical growth companies and under priced business franchises.

The Swiss market performance as measured by the SPI Index for the nine months ended September 30 was 16.99% in U.S. dollar terms compared to 14.71% for the S&P 500. The Swiss franc loss of 6% versus the euro this year has translated into a year to date Swiss market performance of 5.5% in euro terms. This compares to a performance of only 1.7% in euros for the S&P 500 despite the very strong advance of U.S. technology stocks.

The Fund underperformed the SPI with an increase in net asset value of 15.14% and a share price performance of 14.91% in U.S. dollar terms. However, the Fund outperformed the Swiss Market Index (SMI) of blue chip companies which was up only 14.03% in U.S. dollar terms. The Fund's portfolio has a higher weighting in mid-sized companies than either the SPI or SMI and the accent put on stock picking has resulted in a focus on fewer names. Management has also reduced the Fund's exposure to the financial sector, mainly the insurance and financial service companies, due to the increased volatility in the worldwide bond market, especially in the U.S. Management expects the volatility in the U.S. Treasury market to continue based on the weakness of the U.S. dollar, the hedging activities of mortgage bankers and the increasing U.S. deficit.

SPECIFIC COMPANY NEWS

UBS: On September 25th, UBS announced its intention to acquire the U.S. prime brokerage operations of ABN AMRO. The broker operates in several major U.S. locations and its main client base of smaller U.S. hedge funds provides a good complement to UBS's existing hedge fund service business.

ABB: On August 28th, ABB announced the issuance of 850 million Swiss franc denominated convertible bonds maturing in 2010. The issue was well received by the market as the amount of the issue was lower than had been expected and as investors continued to increase their confidence in management's restructuring plan.

T H E S W I S S H E L V E T I A F U N D , I N C .

Improved market sentiment toward the company also came from prospects for involvement of ABB's highly regarded high voltage transmission systems in the much needed upgrade of the U.S. power grid.

NOVARTIS: On September 23rd, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) delayed the approval of Novartis' arthritis and pain drug, Prexige, pending submission of additional clinical data. Given Novartis' growth base and well-filled pipeline it is expected that this delay will not significantly alter the company's long-term sales trends.

CREDIT-SUISSE: The announced disposal of Churchill (UK insurance operations) and the company's Italian insurance operations are now completed. These transactions will result in the realizing of capital gains in Credit Suisse Group's third quarter results and a strengthening of Winterthur Group's solvency position.

ZURICH FINANCIAL SERVICES: As part of its continued restructuring program, the company disposed of several of its life insurance business activities. On August 6th, it announced the closure of one of Zurich's UK life businesses and its sale to Swiss Re. On September 1st, it completed the sale of parts of its Dutch operations to SNS Reaal. On September 5th, it sold its life business and part of its non-life business in France to Generali. And on September 4th, it closed the sale of Zurich Life, part of its U.S. life and annuity operations, to Bank One Corporation.

ACTELION: On August 1st, the U.S. FDA approved Zavesca, the first oral treatment option for a genetic lipid storage disorder. On September 30th, the company announced that it had agreed to buy privately held Axovan AG (whose most advanced project is in the area of brain disorders, such as hemorrhage) for an initial amount of $45 million. This acquisition should strengthen the company's research efforts within its existing expertise by adding numerous pre-clinical projects and compounds.

COMMENTS ON THE CURRENCY

U.S. DOLLAR: During the G7 meetings in Dubai, the industrialized nations issued a statement promoting more flexibility in exchange rates based on market mechanisms in order to smooth the necessary rebalancing of the global economy.

Edgar Filing: SWISS HELVETIA FUND INC - Form N-30B-2

The core issue is the gradual downward adjustment of the U.S. dollar to reflect the massive deficits in the U.S. versus the surpluses of, mainly, China and Japan. Due to the expectation of fewer interventions to support it, the U.S. dollar decreased significantly against all major currencies.

SWISS ECONOMIC NOTES

The Swiss National Bank (SNB) continues its expansionary monetary policy. In its

5

last monetary policy assessment on September 18th, the SNB decided to leave the target range for the three-month Libor rate unchanged at 0.00% to 0.75% and to continue to keep the three-month Libor rate at the lower end of the range at 0.25%. The main reasons were the expectation of a moderate decline in real economic activity for 2003 and a perceptible economic upswing only in the course of 2004.

The real gross domestic product declined again in the second quarter of 2003. It fell by 1.2% from the first quarter and by 1% year-on-year. The labor market deteriorated further with an unemployment rate for September at 3.7% vs. 2.8% a year earlier. The unsatisfactory economic situation is primarily the result of stagnation in Europe. Despite more favorable exchange rate conditions, Swiss exports again fell in the second quarter. Consumer spending had a stabilizing effect while investments continued to decline overall.

Nevertheless, there are positive signs. Business sentiment has improved, residential construction has picked up and the financial markets have improved. These trends could gradually improve the Swiss economy towards the end of 2003 and the beginning of 2004.

Year-on-year, the consumer price index dropped to 0.5% in the second quarter of 2003 from 1.0% in the first quarter. The SNB forecasts a drop in inflation bringing its rate close to 0% due to continuing weak economic conditions in Switzerland and the generally moderate price pressure from imported goods.

OUTLOOK

While expectations are for in-line to strong third quarter earnings reports for the market overall and for a strong fourth quarter especially for semi-conductor stocks, it remains a question whether this is a seasonal recovery due to inventory rebuilding or a more fundamental one. With stock prices discounting strong acceleration in sales and even stronger acceleration in earnings, there is not much room for disappointment. If the NASDAQ were to drop substantially, the impact would likely be felt in most of the other areas of the U.S market and elsewhere, particularly in economically sensitive industry groups. Management believes, however, that the biggest risk lies with an increase in bond yields. For that reason the Fund reduced its exposure to the financial sector as mentioned above. On the other hand opportunities remain for investing in companies with on-going structural reforms and in companies in the mid and small capitalization segment left behind by the liquidity rally.
