PROPOSAL 1

PROPOSAL TO WITHDRAW THE ELECTION TO BE A BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

Summary

In February 2006, United EcoEnergy Corp., or the Company, filed an election to become a Business Development Company, or BDC, under Section 54 of the Investment Company Act, or the ICA. The Company intends to withdraw that election pursuant to Section 58 of the ICA.

What is a BDC?

A BDC is a closed-end investment company as that term is defined in the ICA. BDCs do not carry on active businesses; rather they are holding companies that invest in portfolio companies, which may benefit from the management expertise and resources of the BDC. BDCs are subject to various regulatory restrictions on their operations and various other affirmative regulatory requirements as discussed in more detail below.

Why did the Company elect to become a BDC?

The Company was a closed-end management investment company which in February 2006 elected to be treated as a BDC under the ICA. The Company was originally formed in February 1997 as MNS Eagle Equity Group III, Inc.; however, it conducted no operations until electing to be a BDC through which it provided capital and other assistance to start-up and micro-cap companies. During this time, United acquired and established its initial interest in the medical, pharmaceutical and healthcare industry by acquiring intellectual property rights and created Epic Wound Care, Inc., the Company's wholly-own subsidiary which will eventually become the Company's operating platform company in this industry. Given the Company's businesses and prospects at that time that it filed an election to become a BDC, the benefits of the election were determined to outweigh the disadvantages.

Why Elect Non-BDC Status Now?

The nature of Company's business and investment focus has changed from investing, reinvesting, owning, holding, or trading in investment securities toward that of an operating company. In addition, the Company has received communications from the Securities and Exchange Commission in which the Commission alleged that the Company was in noncompliance with some of the Rules and Regulations governing BDC's. Accordingly, the Company's current management and board have determined that the difficulties and costs of compliance with BDC requirements are no longer appropriate and may in fact negatively affect the Company's future growth. Some of the difficulties and costs borne from the regulatory regime governing BDCs are reviewed below along with some that are specific to our Company.

Inherent Generic Difficulties and Costs in Operating BDCs

- BDCs are poorly understood by the investing public. The experience of the Company's management in dealing with investors has convinced us that the typical investor in the Company's stock has little or no understanding of the BDC election and its implications.

- There is little in the way of precedent to guide the operators of BDCs. There is dearth of information regarding the operation of BDCs. Compliance is complicated, and there is very little in the way of definitive guidance available amongst most securities attorneys, accountants and auditors. By contrast, these persons are much more familiar with the rules applicable to normal non-BDC public companies.
- The Investment Company Act of 1940 also imposes, among others, the following regulations on BDCs:
 - (a) The issuance of senior equities and debt securities by a BDC is subject to certain limitations;
 - (b) The issuance of warrants and options by a BDC is subject to certain limitations;

- (c) A BDC may not engage in certain transactions with affiliates without obtaining exemptive relief from the SEC;
- (d) A BDC may not change the nature of its business or fundamental investment policies without the prior approval of the stockholders;
- (e) A BDC must carry its investments at fair value even if a public trading market doesn't exist, rather than at cost in its financial reports;
- (f) The composition of a BDC's Board is restricted (e.g., participation by investment bankers and certain other participants is limited), in addition, a majority of the Board must be independent members, and certain activities by the Company must be approved by the independent members of the Board;
- (g) There are prohibitions and restrictions on investing in certain types of companies, such as brokerage firms, insurance companies and other investment companies;
- (h) There are limits on the types of assets that a BDC may acquire. A BDC may not acquire any asset other than "qualifying assets" unless, at the time the acquisition is made, such "qualifying assets" represent at least 70% of the value of the BDC's total assets. "Qualifying Assets" generally include: (i) securities purchased in transactions not involving any public offering from the issuer of such securities, which issuer is an eligible portfolio company. An eligible portfolio company is defined as any issuer that (a) is organized and has its principal place of business in the United States, (b) is not an investment company other than a small business investment company wholly-owned by the BDC, and (c) does not have any class of publicly-traded securities with respect to which a broker may extend credit; (ii) securities received in exchange for or distributed with respect to securities described above, or pursuant to the exercise of options, warrants or rights relating to such securities; and (iii) cash, cash items, Government securities, or high quality debt securities maturing in one year or less from the time of investment. A BDC may invest in the securities of public companies and other investments that are not "qualifying assets," but such investments may not exceed 30% of the BDC's total asset value at the time of such investment;
- (i) A BDC generally may not issue common stock at a per share price less than the then-current net asset value of the common stock without the prior approval of stockholders; and
- (j) A BDC is restricted in its ability to repurchase its shares directly from stockholders.

Deliberations on BDC Status

In December 2009, as a result of the increasing opportunities for Epic Wound Care, Inc., the Company's wholly-owned subsidiary, the Company's management recommended to the Board that the Company concentrate on identifying emerging healthcare products and technologies for strategic partnership or acquisition, all of which the Company would operate. This led to an internal examination of the benefits and disadvantages of the Company's status as a BDC.

In particular, the Board discussed the Company's evolution to more of an operating company as the majority of the Company's resources were allocated to managing the operating activities of its holdings. Additionally, it was noted that the Company's focused industry operated in an expanding market that the Board believes offers significant growth potential for the Company's shareholders.

The Board also considered the disadvantages of continuing the Company's BDC status. After two meetings and numerous informed discussions, and after consultation with market participants, industry experts and legal counsel, the Board determined that the Company's prospects would be enhanced if the Company were to withdraw as a BDC and instead continue as a non-BDC operating company.

Additional Considerations for Withdrawal of the Company's BDC Status

In addition to considering all of the foregoing, the Board's decision was based on the following additional considerations.

Related Party Transactions

The ICA significantly restricts among other things (a) transactions involving transfers of property in either direction between the Company and most affiliated persons of the Company (or the affiliated persons of such affiliated persons) and (b) transactions between the Company and such affiliated persons (or the affiliated persons of such affiliated persons) participating jointly on the one hand and third parties on the other. To overcome these investment company restrictions, which are somewhat relaxed as applied to BDC's, requires SEC approval, which is often a time-consuming and expensive procedure, regardless of the intrinsic fairness of such transactions or the approval thereof by disinterested directors of the Company. The Company believes situations may arise in which a corporation's best interests are served by such transactions. The Board believes that stockholders are adequately protected by the fiduciary obligations imposed on the Company's directors under state corporate law, which generally requires that the disinterested members of the Board determine fairness to the Company of an interested-party transaction (provided full disclosure of all material facts regarding the transaction and the interested party's relationship with the Company is made), and SEC disclosure rules, which require the Company to include specified disclosure regarding transactions with related parties in its SEC filings.

Business Focus

The nature of the Company's business is changing from a business that intended to be in the business of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding, or trading in investment securities toward that of an operating company whose focus is on acquiring controlling interests in companies and becoming intimately involved with the day-to-day operation of our portfolio companies. The Board believes that BDC regulations would be inappropriate for such activities.

Issuance of Common Stock

By virtue of its BDC election, the Company may not issue new shares of Common Stock at a per share price less than the then net asset value per share of outstanding Common Stock without prior stockholder approval. Conceivably, the market prices for "BDC" stock could be lower than net asset value, making it much more difficult for the BDC to raise equity capital. While this restriction provides stockholders of an investment company with appropriate and meaningful protection against dilution of their indirect investment interest in portfolio securities, the Company's Board believes that this would essentially be irrelevant to the interests of investors in an operating company, who look to its consolidated earnings stream and cash flow from operations for investment value. The Company has not sold stock below net asset value.

Compensation of Executives

The ICA limits the extent to which and the circumstances under which executives of a BDC may be paid compensation other than in the form of salary payable in cash. For example, the issuance of Restricted Stock is generally prohibited and the use of stock options is significantly limited. However, the Board believes that by achieving greater flexibility in the structuring of employee compensation packages, the Company will be able to attract and retain additional talented and qualified personnel and to more fairly reward and more effectively motivate its personnel in accordance with industry practice.

Eligible Investments

As a BDC, the Company may not acquire any asset other than "Qualifying Assets" unless, at the time the acquisition is made, Qualifying Assets represent at least 70% of the value of the total assets (the "70% test"). Because of the limitations on the type of investments the Company may make, as well as the Company's total asset composition, the Company may be foreclosed from participating in prudent investment opportunities and otherwise lack diversification.

Burden of Complying with the Investment Company Act

The Company must incur significant general and administrative costs in order to comply with the regulations imposed by the ICA. Management has already devoted considerable time to issues relating to compliance with the ICA and the Company incurs legal and accounting fees with respect to such matters. The costs of this regulation are borne by, and the protections of this regulation are for the benefit of, the stockholders of the Company. The Board believes that resources now being expended on the ICA compliance matters could be utilized more productively if devoted to the operation of the Company's business. The Board has determined that the costs of compliance with the ICA are substantial, especially when compared to the Company's relative size and net income, and that it would therefore be in the financial interests of the stockholders for the Company to cease to be regulated under the ICA altogether. In addition, the Board believes the withdrawal of the Company's BDC election will have the following beneficial effects:

- (a) The Company can utilize the equity method of accounting, which allows the consolidation of all subsidiary and parent company financials;
- (b) Some of the Company's future investments may be in foreign companies, which is prohibited as a BDC under the ICA;
- (c) The Company is currently prohibited from raising capital through the issuance and sale of stock if it is sold below net asset value. If the Company withdraws its BDC election, it will be permitted to raise money through the sale of its stock based on fair market value, even if that value is less than net asset value;
- (d) The Company can utilize debt in a beneficial way. Currently the Company must have an asset to debt ratio of no more than 2:1 net asset to senior security;
- (e) The Company could use preferred stock to make acquisitions;
- (f) The Company could use a stock option plan to compensate directors and others for services rendered;
- (g) As an operating company, we would be allowed to engage in affiliated transactions that would benefit the Company.

The Board of Directors' Recommendation

The Board believes that for the above reasons, particularly the opportunities presented by concentrating in the healthcare industry, that it is in the stockholders' best interests to have the Company withdraw its election to be treated as a BDC. Further, the Board believes that the burdensome nature of the many ICA restrictions will ultimately have the effect of dampening market interest in the Company and hinder its growth. The Board has determined that the most efficacious way to reduce these costs, improve prospects, and eliminate the competitive disadvantages the Company experiences due to compliance with the many requirements and restrictions associated with operating as a BDC under the ICA would be to withdraw the Company's election to be treated as a BDC. As an operating company, the fundamental nature of the Company's business will change from that of investing in a portfolio of securities whose value will vary with the perceptions of the investing public to that of being actively engaged in the ownership and management of operating businesses with the goal of facilitating the generation of net profits in the operations of those businesses. Our business plan includes making strategic investments in cash-flow positive businesses with strong perceived growth potential in the healthcare industry. The Board considered other effects of withdrawal of its election to operate as a BDC. These considerations are summarized below:

Effect of Election to Withdraw as a BDC on the Company's Financial Statements

The election to withdraw the Company as a BDC under the ICA result in a significant change in our method of accounting which was reflected in the Company's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2009 and the Company's Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q for the three months ended March 31, 2010. The differences in accounting methods are as follows:

1. The Company formerly utilized the BDC financial statement presentation which employed the value method of accounting used by investment companies, which allows BDCs to recognize income and value their investments at market value as opposed to historical cost. As an operating company, the Company adopted the financial statement presentation and accounting for securities held which provides for either fair value or historical cost methods of accounting, depending on the classification of the investment and the Company's intent with respect to the period of time it intends to hold the investment.
2. Change in the Company's method of accounting could reduce the reported value of its investments in privately held companies by eliminating the Company's ability to report an increase in value of its holdings as the increase occurs;
3. As an operating company, the Company consolidates its financial statements with its controlled subsidiaries, thus eliminating the portfolio company reporting benefits available to BDCs.

Pursuant to ASC 250 – Accounting Changes and Error Corrections in reporting the changes in a reporting entity, the Company restated its previously issued financial statements for all prior periods presented in order to show financial information for new reporting entity for all periods in a consistent manner.

The Company never elected to be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes, nor did it to qualify, as a Regulated Investment Company under Subchapter M of the Internal Revenue Code. As a result, the Company has been and will continue to be taxed as a regular corporation under Subchapter C of the Internal Revenue Code (a "C" corporation").

Potential Adverse Effects on Stockholders if BDC Election is Withdrawn

The ICA codifies many common law and other stockholder protections that are often found in the common law, but which are intended to provide a BDC's stockholders with express statutory rights. If the Company's BDC status is withdrawn, then these statutory protections will no longer be available. For example, if BDC election is withdrawn, then stockholders may be adversely affected by withdrawal of the requirement that a majority of the Board be independent of management. Similarly, the Company will no longer have restrictions on investments and stock issuance, and officers and directors would be able to receive stock in the Company.

PROPOSAL 2

PROPOSAL TO CHANGE OF NAME TO UNITED HEALTH PRODUCTS, INC.

The Company was originally formed in February 1997, in the State of Nevada, as MNS Eagle Equity Group III, Inc.; however, it conducted no operations until electing to be a BDC in 2006 when the Company changed its name to United EcoEnergy Corp. to provide capital and other assistance to start-up and micro-cap companies. The United EcoEnergy Corp. name significance was related to the original type of investments that the Company sought to pursue. However, with the evolution of our business, the Board of Directors determined that a name that more closely identifies us with our ongoing business would be in the best interests of us and our shareholders. Therefore, at a meeting of the Board of Directors on February 9, 2010, the Board unanimously approved the change of our corporate name to United Health Products, Inc.

Under the laws of the State of Nevada, a change of a corporation's name requires the approval of its stockholders, either at a meeting or by consent of the holders of a sufficient number of shares. In this case, the holders of a majority of our outstanding shares have approved the change. The change was approved by the same holders as reflected in Proposal 1 of this Proxy Statement. The name change will become effective upon the filing of a Certificate of Amendment to our Certificate of Incorporation in the State of Nevada. This filing will be made after 40 days have elapsed since the mailing of this Information Statement to our stockholders.

This information statement is your notice that the proposal concerning the withdrawal proposal has been approved and you will receive no further notice when the change becomes effective.

Except as set forth above, no director or officer of the Company or associate of any director or officer of the Company has a substantial interest in the withdrawal proposal. No director of the Company has informed the Company in writing that such director intends to oppose the withdrawal proposal. No security holder entitled to vote at a meeting or by written consent has submitted to the Company any other proposal.

By Order of the Board of Directors,
