Proxy Contest: What You Need to Know

Letters to Shareholders

5/14/09

Open Letter to Shareholders

In an open letter to shareholders, Gregg Steinhafel, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Target Corporation, states, "We believe Pershing Square has presented no plan or strategy to justify a change in your Board or management team. It appears that Pershing Square has launched its proxy contest because Target rejected Pershing Square's risky real estate proposal after careful evaluation."

Letter to Shareholders

Target is committed to maintaining open communications with all of its shareholders and has a long history of being open to shareholder proposals and issues. We believe Pershing Square has changed its position in a number of areas to divert attention from the real reason for its proxy contest — to push its risky real estate agenda prior to the expiry of its short-term options.

Letter to Shareholders

Gregg Steinhafel, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Target Corporation, states, "We believe Pershing Square has changed its position on Target's real estate and Target's credit card transaction and is attacking Target's Board and management to divert attention from the real reason for its proxy contest."

Letter to Shareholders

Gregg Steinhafel, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Target Corporation, states, "Pershing Square complimented Target's consistent and transparent shareholder engagement, strategy and leadership until Pershing Square's real estate proposal was rejected. Vote for your Board's nominees on the WHITE proxy card today to defeat Pershing Square's proxy contest."

Letter to Shareholders

"Target's Board has the strength, diversity, experience and qualifications to provide effective and independent oversight and direction to the company. Target's Board consists of 12 highly qualified directors, 11 of whom are independent. Each member of your Board is committed to delivering superior results and serving the best interests of ALL Target shareholders," says Gregg Steinhafel, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Target Corporation.

Message from Gregg Steinhafel to Target Team Members

Target Shareholders Should Read Between the Lines

Target team members are encouraged to look a little closer at our plans for Target, what we're hearing from investment analysts (Target is set to enjoy a period of sizable upward earnings Charles Grom, J.P. Morgan, 8 May 2009), and what we believe is really behind Pershing Square's proxy fight (No one spends $15 million on a monster proxy battle just because he thinks that one set of independent directors will be marginally better at giving direction to existing management than the current set of independent directors. Felix Simon, Seeking Alpha, 11 May 2009). *

Letter to Team Members

Pershing Square Applauded Target until it Launched its Proxy Contest

In a message to Target team members, Gregg Steinhafel, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Target Corporation, states, "With everything that is being said, it is worth looking back at the positive things Pershing Square has said about our company until it launched its proxy contest. Pershing Square regularly praised Target leadership, strategy and shareholder engagement."

Target Corporation Comments on Egan-Jones and Proxy Governance Recommendations

We are pleased that, in recommending shareholders vote Target's WHITE proxy card, Egan-Jones states: "Pershing Square has provided no convincing strategic plan that would lead to improvement in long-term shareholder value, [Target] was transparent in its review and ultimate rejection of Pershing Square's earlier real estate proposals, and We have confidence in [Target's] existing management and Board of Directors" *
