Colleagues,

Today we announced that Pfizer has reached an agreement to combine with Allergan, a global pharmaceutical company and leader in Growth Pharma focused on developing, manufacturing and commercializing innovative branded pharmaceuticals. [Click here for the press release].

Reinforcing our strategic priorities

The combination with Allergan is aligned with our mission to become the premier biopharmaceutical company, our purpose of innovating to bring therapies to patients that significantly improve their lives, and our strategy to maximize value for our shareholders.

With the combination of our two great companies, we will be poised to bring even more medicines to more people around the world through an enhanced pipeline and with greater flexibility and resources to invest in R&D and manufacturing. Allergan's Open Science model complements the work we launched over 5 years ago to change our approach to R&D to be one of collaborative innovation, inside and outside of the company. With the addition of Allergan, we will enhance our R&D capabilities in both new molecular entities and product line extensions.

Enhancing our business

The combination with Allergan's portfolio, capabilities and leadership expertise will improve the competitiveness, positioning and financial profile of our commercial businesses.

In our Innovative businesses, Allergan's portfolio complements our leadership positions in oncology, vaccines, consumer, cardiovascular metabolic, rare disease, and inflammation and immunology. A combination with Allergan will provide us with an expanded portfolio in several desirable therapeutic areas including gastroenterology, aesthetics and dermatology and eye care.

In the established business, the combination with Allergan will bring new distribution capabilities, add additional brands in women's health and anti-infectives to the portfolio, and position it as the world's leading established products business.

We will also be able to leverage our existing global footprint to expand the opportunities for Allergan's business, the vast majority of which is in North America today. I would note that our global operational headquarters will remain in New York and the combined company is expected to maintain Allergan's Irish legal domicile.

Additionally, we will benefit from the knowledge and expertise of Allergan's CEO, Brent Saunders, who will be joining Pfizer as President and Chief Operating Officer once the transaction closes. He has extensive industry experience through significant leadership positions with several pharmaceutical companies including Schering-Plough, Bausch & Lomb, Forest Laboratories, and Actavis. Once the transaction is closed Brent will be responsible for the oversight of Pfizer and Allergan's combined commercial businesses, manufacturing and strategy functions. Albert Bourla, Geno Germano, Tony Maddaluna, Laurie Olson and John Young will report to Brent and will continue to be members of the Executive Leadership Team. Additionally, we are delighted that Allergan's research expertise in several highly attractive therapeutic areas such as ophthalmology, medical dermatology, neuroscience and gastrointestinal inflammation will be joining with our worldwide research and development team enhancing our ability to develop innovative therapies that meet patients' unmet needs.

Right decision, right time

You may be asking why we decided to pursue a combination with Allergan given our strong performance year to date across all of our businesses and our ongoing success in bringing breakthrough therapies to market such as Eliquis, Ibrance, Prevnar 13 Adult, Trumenba and Xeljanz.

Our strategic rationale is clear. Combining with Allergan will allow us to capture opportunities for near-term revenue growth, enhance our leadership in categories of growth, gain new capabilities to maximize the value of established brands and optimize our capital structure. With a stronger commercial capability and higher degree of financial flexibility, we will be better positioned to find treatments and cures for some of the most difficult diseases impacting patients.

Underlying the strategic rationale is Allergan's commitment to a bold culture that has a bias for action, seizes accountability, takes risks and drives results. This is very much aligned with the core of our ownership culture and will help to further differentiate us from our competitors.

Status of optionality and next steps

With today's news you may also be wondering how this might impact the timing of a decision to potentially split the company. With the acute focus we will have on successfully integrating our two companies following the close, we expect to be in a position to make a decision regarding optionality by the end of 2018. We will firm up the timing as we work through the integration process.

Given that completion of the transaction is subject to customary closing conditions, including regulatory and shareholders approvals, the transaction is not expected to close until the second half of 2016.

I will share more details today in a One Pfizer broadcast, scheduled for 12:30 pm ET. Dial-in information will be posted on PfizerWorld and sent via email this morning. Additional information is available on an Allergan Update page on PfizerWorld, which will continue to be updated with new developments.

We are on track for a strong finish to this year and want to carry that momentum into next year.

It is critical we draw upon our ownership culture to deliver on our commitments and remain focused on meeting the needs of the patients we serve.

Dear VOC Colleagues,

Today is an exciting day for Pfizer. As you saw in Ian's letter, we announced our intention to combine with Allergan. This is an opportunity for two great companies to come together to create a better, more competitive biopharmaceutical company, where we can further maximize our growth opportunities and enhance our leadership in the marketplace.

I hope you're as enthusiastic as I am about the potential of this combination. By bringing additional depth and expertise in more therapeutic areas, we will further strengthen our ability to deliver more and better healthcare solutions.

This move complements and enhances our Innovative (GIP and VOC) and Established (GEP) businesses, and will drive greater sustainability for Pfizer. More specifically, this combination is expected to:

Strengthen our Innovative business with new focus areas: Eye Care and Medical Dermatology and Aesthetics;

Add complementary products to our existing innovative portfolio in Inflammation and Immunology (including GI) as well as Cardio Metabolic, Rare Disease and Neuroscience; and Enhance our Established business with a combination of Allergan's branded off-patent or recently off-patent medicines.

Additionally, once the deal closes, Brent Saunders will join Pfizer as President and Chief Operating Officer. His extensive industry experience, strong leadership track record and insights will be a great asset to our combined company.

What does this mean for VOC?

Pfizer Vaccines, Pfizer Oncology and Pfizer Consumer Healthcare will continue to be key growth drivers of Pfizer's innovative core. Each one flourishes because they have the focus, culture and dedicated resources required to position them for long-term success. This transaction is expected to further strengthen Pfizer's financial flexibility and importantly, provide our three businesses with greater access to capital, which will give us additional resources to invest more in our valuable pipeline.

We will continue to advance our strategy to build businesses of the future so we can compete effectively in an increasingly competitive environment. Our priority today is the same as it was yesterday putting our patients and consumers at the heart of our work. I m confident that this combination will allow us to deliver more and bring better value to the people that count us.

November 23, 2015

Dear Colleagues,

Today is an exciting day for Pfizer and for the WRD organization as we announced our intention to bring together two great companies, Pfizer and Allergan, to form a new biopharmaceutical leader. A combined organization will unite two exciting and complementary R&D portfolios containing many differentiated products that further support our goal of delivering impactful therapies to patients in need.

From a Biopharmaceutical innovation perspective, Allergan is a logical and attractive fit for Pfizer, with complementary expertise and assets that enhance some of our critical growth areas including Neuroscience and Gastrointestinal Inflammation. Allergan will also provide us with an opportunity to enter new markets and therapeutic areas through their strong leadership position in Ophthalmology/Eye Care and Medical Dermatology/Aesthetics. With a much larger innovative portfolio of marketed products and growing revenue streams, the combined company will be well positioned to support a substantial ongoing R&D commitment.

COMPLEMENTARY PORTFOLIOS AND EXPERTISE

In Neuroscience, Allergan has a promising pipeline of assets across a number of disease areas, including a novel treatment in development for major depression with rapid action in a treatment-resistant population. The company also has a strong portfolio of marketed products addressing Alzheimer's disease and psychiatric disorders. This market presence will provide us with insights and expanded resources to support end-to-end planning across our own promising Neuroscience portfolio.

In Gastrointestinal disease, Allergan has marketed products and a number of novel drugs for irritable bowel disease (IBS) as well as a potentially breakthrough therapy for diabetic gastroparesis, an area of high unmet need. These assets will help support our own ambitions of becoming a category leader in Inflammation and Immunology.

Allergan's leadership in Ophthalmology/Eye Care and Medical Dermatology/Aesthetics provides two highly attractive new growth platforms for Pfizer with top tier experts that can be leveraged across our broader R&D portfolio and substantially extend our experience in medical dermatology to dermal aesthetics. Allergan has been building capabilities to develop solutions for back of the eye diseases of the retina. Ophthalmology has natural convergence with Neuroscience as the retina is part of the central nervous system, and many of these diseases share pathways well-studied in Oncology and Inflammation that can be explored across our existing therapeutic areas. Further, Allergan's experience with botulinum toxin (onabotulinumtoxinA, Botox®) brings additional capabilities in developing and commercializing complex biologics that are complementary to our own expertise in Bio-PharmSci. I also believe we can learn from Allergan's work in building an extensive pipeline around Botox®, which they have grown from its origins in aesthetics to address multiple new indications in other disease areas. The combined company will have capabilities that can further enhance our lifecycle management efforts.

Beyond the benefits this deal offers for our innovative businesses, Allergan also has a complementary portfolio that can enhance our established products business in areas such as Women's Health and Anti-infectives.

ADDRESSING UNCERTAINTIES

With any proposed transaction, there are uncertainties. While it is too early to know specifics, we remain committed to our six existing therapeutic areas and we believe the complementary nature of Allergan's portfolio and expertise will facilitate an efficient integration of Allergan R&D into WRD while limiting the potential disruption and impact to both organizations. We also anticipate an efficient integration of the BU medical development groups.

I know you may be wondering how this acquisition may shape the future of R&D at Pfizer. Let me assure you that we continue to place tremendous value on having our own robust discovery and early research capabilities. Our programs and pipeline will continue to take advantage of collaboration-driven models and high value business development through our ERDI and CTI organizations. An open science model is fully compatible with our efforts to build and sustain industry-leading drug discovery research. The early discovery research in our laboratories helps us identify and develop highly differentiated assets including two of our leading growth products, Prevnar 13 and Ibrance. A key to our success has been in sourcing the best assets, capabilities and talent from within our walls, while creatively tapping into the rich external environment. Allergan has had a great deal of success with their own open science model and there is much that we can learn from each other in building deeper relationships across the entire innovation ecosystem.

As with all transactions of this nature, we will continue to operate as independent organizations until the deal closes and we are able to begin integrating the two companies. I will keep you posted on progress as we work toward achieving the necessary regulatory and shareholder approvals. In the meantime, our work in the interest of patients continues, as does our need to focus our efforts in advancing our promising pipeline.

Regards,

Mikael

Dear Colleagues:

This is a truly exciting day for Pfizer and for Global Innovative Pharma. Today we announced our agreement with Allergan to come together to create a more competitive, biopharmaceutical company.

This move complements and enhances our Innovative and Established businesses, and will drive greater sustainability for Pfizer.

For Global Innovative Pharma, the combination of the two companies reinforces our Category Leadership strategy by adding leading expertise, talent, and assets in our current categories: Cardiovascular Metabolic, Inflammation & Immunology, Rare Disease, and Neuroscience & Pain.

The combination of the two companies helps toward realizing our long-standing ambition for sustainable growth, which will be fueled by:

The strength of the combined leadership, expertise and capabilities of both companies

The complimentary nature of key programs in clinical development, largely focused in our leadership categories

And our combined in-line portfolio, which has the potential to realize significant growth through the global scale and scope of Pfizer

Combining these two companies will help to fill our mid-term gap, enabling the combined company to realize potential market-leading revenue growth. The deal also allows for greater financial flexibility to invest in R&D, business development and returns to shareholders.

Looking forward the combined company accelerates our Global Innovative Pharma Category Leadership strategy through the addition of a number of high potential products and pipeline assets. Here are some highlights:

Cardiovascular Metabolic: Bystolic for high blood pressure, and assets in congestive heart failure

Inflammation & Immunology: Several gastroenterology assets, including Linzess for irritable bowel syndrome with constipation and chronic idiopathic constipation, Viberzi for irritable bowel syndrome-diarrhea, and an investigational asset for diabetic gastroparesis

Rare Disease: Zenpep, a medicine for digestive challenges often faced by people with Cystic Fibrosis

Neuroscience: With products like Fetzima and Viibryd for depression and Saphris for mania or mixed episodes in bipolar disorder, and an exciting pipeline in depression, schizophrenia and migraine

How we manage new areas like Eye Care, and Medical Dermatology & Aesthetics, and the Botox franchise, will be determined through the integration process.

On the Established side, the addition of Allergan's women's health and anti-infectives portfolio will add depth to our business and Pfizer will expand the reach of Allergan's established portfolio using its existing commercial capabilities, infrastructure and global scale.

My early interactions with the leadership of Allergan have highlighted for me how compatible the two companies are culturally. Both companies have similar characteristics of accountability, customer-focus, innovation and aspiration. We both take an OWN IT! approach to the way we do business. We also will benefit from the wealth of experience and industry knowledge that Brent Saunders brings as we launch the new organization.

We expect to close this deal in the second half of 2016. Until a close, we remain separate companies, and must act as such, which means that we cannot interact with Allergan colleagues. I will share more information with you as we begin the integration process.

As we start 2016, our sharper focus will begin to bring bigger impact in each of our four categories. Our goal is to lead. Leadership is dependent upon each of us turning our aspiration into reality.

Thank you,

November 23, 2015

Dear Colleagues:

Today, Pfizer announced our intention to combine with Allergan through a strategic deal that brings us closer to our goal of becoming the industry's premier global biopharmaceutical leader. This transaction will provide enhanced near term revenue growth potential and will unlock greater financial flexibility in our capital allocation decisions. Through this combination we will enhance our innovative businesses with leading products and a promising pipeline that can further support our long term leadership in key growth categories while servicing a broader spectrum of patient needs. The deal will also add further depth to our established business while opening up new global markets for Allergan's product portfolio.

Over the past few years Allergan has created a business focused on driving leading positions across a number of high-growth therapeutic areas such as Neuroscience and Gastrointestinal Inflammation, which are complementary to our own focus areas. This acquisition also offers the opportunity for Pfizer to enter two new and highly attractive markets in Ophthalmology/Eye Care and Medical Dermatology/Aesthetics. In these areas, Allergan has built impressive high functioning, high-performance organizations able to move quickly to address areas of unmet need brought about by shifting demographics and an increased focus on wellness.

I believe there is a great deal that Pfizer can learn from the success of Allergan's business model, which appears to also rely heavily on leveraging customer insights, competitive intelligence, commercial operations and portfolio management principles to set strategy and drive decision making and collaboration. Given our enterprise-wide view and our focus on Strategy, Analytics, Operations and Engagement, SPCO will play a major role within the combined company to ensure that we take full advantage of the many opportunities that this transaction provides. I look forward to working closely with Brent Saunders after the transaction closes and he takes on the role of President and Chief Operating Officer. Brent brings extensive industry experience that he has gained through a number of significant leadership positions in the industry and I am sure we will all benefit from his knowledge, insights and commercial prowess.

Deals of this nature can be disruptive and distracting from our work at hand, and therefore, I am relying on you all to pull together and stay focused as we work toward the completion of a very successful year. I will keep you posted on progress as we work toward a transaction close, which we expect will be in the second half of 2016.

I would like to point out something that struck me about these two organizations and that is the alignment that I already see in our cultures. We call it OWNIT! while Allergan calls it BOLD. But both encourage colleagues to seize accountability and take calculated risks. A great reminder of what might happen if we Dare to Try.

Best regards,

Laurie J. Olson

Dear Colleagues,

Today's announcement is great news for Pfizer and its Innovative businesses, but it's also more great news for our Established business, coming on the back of our very successful combination with Hospira.

Allergan will further enhance our Established business with a portfolio of branded off-patent and recently off-patent medicines, and a portfolio of newly launched or still patented medicines in some of our already existing key therapeutic areas such as Anti-infectives, Women's Health, and Alzheimer's Disease, which will be a source of additional growth. Further, Allergan's capabilities will enhance our distribution capabilities in the United States. Allergan's Established portfolio is expected to generate approximately $5 billion of revenue in 2015, per Allergan guidance.

Once combined, Pfizer and Allergan will work to use our complementary capabilities to continue to create value for products late in their lifecycle, and we'll use our commercial capabilities, infrastructure and global scale to work to expand the reach of Allergan's in-line portfolio. Allergan will also bring Pfizer topical formulation and manufacturing capabilities which present opportunities to add more new products to our portfolio going forward.

We look forward to the leadership and extensive industry experience of Brent Saunders, Allergan's CEO, who will be joining Pfizer as President and Chief Operating Officer once the transaction closes. And as with Hospira, we'll be combining complementary cultures "Own It!" and "Bold" both encourage colleagues to seize accountability and take calculated risks.

In sum, together our two companies will be an even better, more competitive biopharmaceutical leader, poised to make more medicines available to more people around the world.

Statement Required by the Irish Takeover Rules

The directors of Pfizer accept responsibility for the information contained in this communication. To the best of the knowledge and belief of the directors of Pfizer (who have taken all reasonable care to ensure that such is the case), the information contained in this communication for which they accept responsibility is in accordance with the facts and does not omit anything likely to affect the import of such information.

OVERVIEW OF TAX IMPLICATIONS OF THE PROPOSED TRANSACTION FOR PFIZER S AND ALLERGAN S SHAREHOLDERS

We believe this proposed transaction will greatly enhance stockholder value. As a result of this transaction, Pfizer will have greater financial flexibility that will facilitate our continued discovery and development of new innovative medicines for patients, direct return of capital to stockholders and investment in the U.S., while also enabling our pursuit of business development opportunities on a more competitive footing within our industry.

Although Pfizer s U.S. stockholders will recognize a taxable gain but not a loss for U.S. federal income tax purposes, we believe that the benefits of this transaction outweigh the potential tax impact to Pfizer s U.S. stockholders.

The transaction is expected to be tax-free to Allergan shareholders for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

QUESTIONS ON U.S. TAXES FOR PFIZER S STOCKHOLDERS

We recommend that you consult your own tax advisor as to the particular tax consequences of the transaction to you, including the effect of U.S. federal, state and local tax laws or foreign tax laws.

1. What makes this transaction a taxable event for Pfizer stockholders in the U.S.?

As a result of the proposed transaction, the combined company, Pfizer plc, will be organized under the laws of Ireland. Under U.S. federal income tax rules, this will render the transaction taxable to Pfizer s U.S. stockholders.

We believe combining the companies under an Irish parent corporation rather than a corporation organized in the U.S. will provide the most value for the combined company s stockholders.

2. Why should Pfizer s U.S. stockholders agree to the transaction when it s a taxable event for them?

This transaction will create a better, more competitive company that we believe will be better able to deliver returns to stockholders. We believe the strategic benefits of the new corporate structure will be more beneficial to stockholders than the existing structure and outweigh the tax implications.

Pfizer stockholders will have the opportunity to elect to receive cash in lieu of shares of the combined company for some or all of their Pfizer shares, which may help to mitigate the impact of the transaction being a taxable event.

3. How do I calculate my U.S. tax?

U.S. beneficial owners of Pfizer common stock will generally recognize taxable capital gain but not loss as of the closing of the transaction, equal to the difference between (1) the sum of the fair market value of the Pfizer plc ordinary shares and any cash received in exchange for the Pfizer common stock surrendered, and (2) the holder's adjusted tax basis in the Pfizer common stock surrendered in the exchange.

4. If I am a Pfizer stockholder subject to capital gains taxes, how do I determine my adjusted tax basis in my Pfizer common stock?

The basis of your Pfizer common stock generally is the purchase price you paid for your shares plus the costs of purchase, such as commissions and recording or transfer fees. If you acquired Pfizer common stock other than by purchase, your basis is usually determined by fair market value on the date you acquired your shares, or the previous owner's adjusted basis depending on how you acquired your shares.

Employees who received shares under employment plans may be subject to different rules.

Information regarding the historical performance of Pfizer common stock, dividend history, a simple investment calculator and a link to a third-party cost basis service are on Pfizer's Investor Relations website: <http://www.Pfizer.com/investors>.

For more information on determining your cost basis, you can visit the IRS's website: <https://www.irs.gov/publications/p551/>.

Please contact your tax advisor about the application of these rules to you.

5. I hold my Pfizer shares through an IRA or other tax-deferred account. What are the tax consequences to me?

In general, gains on Pfizer shares held within IRAs and other retirement accounts will be deferred until amounts are withdrawn from the account.

Please contact your tax advisor about the application of these rules to you.

6. I am an employee of Pfizer. Where can I find additional information regarding tax matters that may be applicable to my situation?

In general, gains on Pfizer shares held within IRAs and other retirement accounts will be deferred until amounts are withdrawn from the account.

Employees should consult their own tax advisors regarding the particular tax consequences of this transaction.

In the coming weeks, we will be updating the Pfizer World intranet site with additional information regarding tax matters.

7. What will be the U.S. tax treatment of dividends paid to U.S. stockholders?

Like current dividends paid to holders of Pfizer common stock, dividends paid to non-corporate U.S. stockholders of the combined company are expected to be eligible for preferential rates of taxation as qualified dividends for U.S. federal income tax purposes, subject to certain holding period and other requirements. However, dividends paid to corporate U.S. stockholders will no longer be eligible for the dividends-received deduction for U.S. Federal income tax purposes.

QUESTIONS ON INTERNATIONAL TAXES FOR PFIZER STOCKHOLDERS

8. I am a non-U.S. Pfizer stockholder. Will I be subject to U.S. federal income tax on this transaction? Will I be subject to local tax on this transaction?

A non-U.S. stockholder of Pfizer who is not otherwise subject to U.S. tax on a net income basis in respect of his or her holding of Pfizer common stock generally should not be subject to U.S. federal income or withholding tax in respect of the proceeds received in the transaction. Holders of stock in both Pfizer and Allergan may be subject to different treatment.

You should consult your own local tax advisor as to the particular tax consequences of the transaction, including the effect of U.S. federal, state and local tax laws or foreign tax laws.

9. Will there be an Irish withholding tax on dividends paid to Pfizer ordinary stockholders?

Dividends paid to stockholders who are residents of the U.S. generally will not be subject to Irish withholding.

For beneficial stockholders holding Pfizer plc ordinary shares through the Depository Trust Company (DTC) (via a bank or brokerage account) who are residents of the U.S., it is expected that dividends will be paid without any Irish withholding tax provided the addresses of the beneficial owners of such shares in the records of the brokerage firm holding such shares are in the U.S.

For registered stockholders who are residents of the U.S., dividends will be paid without any Irish withholding tax if the stockholder has provided, at least seven business days prior to the record date for such dividend, a valid Irish dividend withholding tax exemption form to Pfizer plc's transfer agent.

A list of relevant territories is included as Annex I to this document.

Dividends paid to stockholders who are residents of relevant territories other than the U.S. (like U.S. holders as described above) generally will not be subject to Irish withholding. For beneficial stockholders holding Pfizer plc ordinary shares through DTC who are residents of relevant territories other than the U.S., dividends will be paid without any Irish withholding tax if the stockholder has provided his or her brokerage firm with a valid Irish dividend withholding tax exemption form (and the relevant information has been further transmitted to any qualifying intermediary appointed by Pfizer plc) before the record date for the dividend. For registered stockholders, dividends will be paid without any Irish withholding tax if the stockholder has provided, at least seven business days prior to the record date for such dividend, a valid Irish dividend withholding tax exemption form to Pfizer plc's transfer agent.

Other exemptions from dividend withholding tax exist under Irish law which may be available to stockholders. In the absence of one of these many exemptions (or the completion of the necessary withholding tax forms), dividends (or other returns to stockholders that are treated as distributions for Irish tax purposes) made by Pfizer plc will be subject to Irish dividend withholding tax, currently at a rate of 20%.

Please contact your tax advisor about the application of these rules to you.

10. Will there be an Irish income tax on dividends on Pfizer ordinary shares?

For the vast majority of stockholders there should not be any Irish income tax on dividends. Dividends paid on Pfizer plc ordinary shares owned by residents of the U.S.

or other relevant territories (or by other stockholders that are otherwise exempt from Irish dividend withholding tax) should generally not be subject to Irish income tax unless the stockholder has some connection to Ireland other than holding Pfizer plc ordinary shares. Dividends paid on Pfizer plc ordinary shares owned by persons who are resident or ordinarily resident in Ireland or who hold their shares in connection with a trade carried on in Ireland through an Irish branch or agency may be subject to Irish income tax and other charges.

Please contact your tax advisor about the application of these rules to you.

11. Will there be an income tax on dividends on Pfizer ordinary shares in the country where I am tax resident?

Tax laws vary across jurisdictions. Please contact your tax advisor about the application of these rules to you.

Transcript of Video Presentations by Ian Read, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Pfizer Inc., on November 23, 2015:

How will patients benefit from the proposed transaction?

Patients will benefit because the company will be stronger. It can invest more in research. It can bring these products to more people around the world. And so I think the patients, net-net, they get the opportunity of getting products faster and more patients get and opportunity of getting these products.

How is this deal good for colleagues?

It's good for both colleagues - it's good for Pfizer colleagues and Allergan colleagues. It creates a company that's stronger. It can offer a better career path and more opportunities for colleagues in the company.

Are you confident this deal will close?

How will this deal close? And how confident am I that it will close? Both management teams are very confident this is a great deal for shareholders, a great deal for patients and a great deal for the U.S. economy. It will allow us to invest more in the U.S. It will allow our colleagues to have a brighter future. It will allow better products to be brought to patients, both in the United States and globally. So we're excited about getting the deal closed. And I see no reason why this deal should not be closed because it's good for the U.S. economy, it's good for shareholders and it's good for patients.

Transcript of Video Presentation by Ian Read, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Pfizer Inc., on November 23, 2015:

I'm really excited about the deal. We're bringing together two great companies, companies with deep roots in the United States. It will allow these companies to invest more in the United States.

It's about bringing two great companies together that have good research, that have complimentary pipelines both in many ways in terms of therapeutic areas and in terms of timing.

This deal enhances Pfizer's pipeline by adding their pipeline to ours and they have products both in CNS and in ophthalmology, and in fact even in aesthetics in early stages. We can take both pipelines and strengthen them.

Allergan is extremely strong in dermatology and with Botox both in aesthetics and in indications like overactive bladder. So it gives us strength in that franchise. It combines our CNS franchise. It opens up opportunities in ophthalmology for us. It brings together two really strong cultures. It offers opportunities of cost synergies. And it also offers the ability for us to use our capital more globally through this transaction.

So I think the highlights of the deal are that it allows us, as Pfizer with Allergan, to strengthen our Innovative Business and make it well competitive while also enabling our Established Products business to also be successful.

Actual results may differ materially from Allergan's current expectations depending upon a number of factors affecting Allergan's business, Pfizer's business and risks associated with business combination transactions. These factors include, among others, the inherent uncertainty associated with financial projections; restructuring in connection with, and successful closing of, the proposed transaction; subsequent integration of the Pfizer and Allergan and the ability to recognize the anticipated synergies and benefits of the proposed transaction; the ability to obtain required regulatory approvals for the transaction (including the approval of antitrust authorities necessary to complete the transaction), the timing of obtaining such approvals and the risk that such approvals may result in the imposition of conditions that could adversely affect the combined company or the expected benefits of the transaction; the ability to obtain the requisite Pfizer and Allergan shareholder approvals; the risk that a condition to closing of the proposed transaction may not be satisfied on a timely basis or at all; the failure of the proposed transaction to close for any other reason; risks relating to the value of the Allergan shares to be issued in the transaction; the anticipated size of the markets and continued demand for Pfizer's and Allergan's products; the difficulty of predicting the timing or outcome of FDA approvals or actions, if any; the impact of competitive products and pricing; market acceptance of and continued demand for Allergan's and Pfizer's products; difficulties or delays in manufacturing; the risks of fluctuations in foreign currency exchange rates; the risks and uncertainties normally incident to the pharmaceutical industry, including product liability claims and the availability of product liability insurance on reasonable terms; the difficulty of predicting the timing or outcome of pending or future litigation or government investigations; periodic dependence on a small number of products for a material source of net revenue or income; variability of trade buying patterns; changes in generally accepted accounting principles; risks that the carrying values of assets may be negatively impacted by future events and circumstances; the timing and success of product launches; costs and efforts to defend or enforce intellectual property rights; the availability and pricing of third party sourced products and materials; successful compliance with governmental regulations applicable to Allergan's and Pfizer's facilities, products and/or businesses; changes in the laws and regulations affecting, among other things, pricing and reimbursement of pharmaceutical products; risks associated with tax liabilities, or changes in U.S. federal or international tax laws or interpretations to which they are subject, including the risk that the Internal Revenue Service disagrees that Allergan is a foreign corporation for U.S. federal tax purposes; the loss of key senior management or scientific staff; and such other risks and uncertainties detailed in Allergan's periodic public filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, including but not limited to Allergan's Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended December 31, 2014, Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q for the quarterly period ended June 30, 2015, Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q for the quarterly period ended September 30, 2015, and from time to time in Allergan's other investor communications. Except as expressly required by law, Allergan disclaims any intent or obligation to update these forward-looking statements.

Applicability of the Irish Takeover Rules
