November 5, 2002

Dear Pharmacia holder,

On behalf of Pfizer we hope to have the opportunity of welcoming you as a shareholder after the completion of the merger. By joining the resources and talents of these two great companies, we are creating a global enterprise with significant competitive strengths, including a broad and deep product portfolio, a robust and varied pipeline of new products and cutting-edge medical research based on the latest discoveries and technologies. We go forward together with many important accomplishments on the forefront of medical innovation, and a renewed commitment to meeting the medical needs of millions of patients around the world.

If the merger is completed, your Pharmacia Swedish depository receipts will be converted into shares of Pfizer. For every Pharmacia Swedish depository receipt you own, you will receive 1.4 shares of Pfizer stock. We at Pfizer are committed to achieving a smooth share-transfer process. For those of you who do not hold your Swedish depository receipts through a nominee, unless you elect otherwise, your Pfizer shares will therefore automatically, and at no charge, be deposited in an account at EquiServe Trust Company, N.A. (EquiServe), an American equivalent of VPC and the U.S.-based handling agent for Pfizer shares.

With EquiServe, you will receive the first two dividends from Pfizer in Swedish kronor, (after deduction of a small currency conversion charge). Through EquiServe, you will also be eligible for enrollment in our award-winning Pfizer Shareholder Investment Program. Designed for private investors and with more than 175,000 registered U.S. and non-U.S. members, this program allows individuals to hold Pfizer shares, add to their holdings and reinvest dividends in Pfizer shares all at no cost.

EquiServe also allows you to sell your Pfizer shares on the New York Stock Exchange at low cost. In addition, through the end of March 2003, all shareholders will be able to sell their Pfizer shares through EquiServe free of charge. Should you for any reason prefer to sell Pfizer shares, you may therefore do so at no cost during this period. Furthermore, the proceeds from any such sale through EquiServe in Swedish kronor can be deposited in your Swedish bank account (after deduction of a small currency conversion charge).

U.S. law requires a filing of federal tax forms when your Pfizer shares are registered with EquiServe, and Pfizer will provide a Swedish translation of that form. Holding your shares through a bank or brokerage eliminates this requirement.

To simplify matters, Pfizer will update you on available options and, during the transition period, provide a toll-free Swedish-language help-line to answer any questions you might have about Pfizer, the Pfizer Shareholder Investment Program, EquiServe, required U.S. tax forms and the share exchange.

If you have any questions or concerns, please call the Swedish toll-free shareholder help-line at 020-130 12 00. The service will be staffed between 9 am to 5 pm Monday to Friday, excluding holidays, from now until the end February 2003.

Edgar Filing: PHARMACIA CORP /DE/ - Form 425

It is our goal to make the transition to Pfizer share-ownership as simple and convenient as possible, and we urge you to carefully read the accompanying information package in its entirety.

We look to the future and all the opportunities ahead with great anticipation.

Sincerely,

/s/ Margaret M. Foran

Adoption of the merger agreement requires the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the votes represented by the outstanding shares of Pharmacia common stock (including Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia), and Pharmacia Series B convertible perpetual preferred stock, voting together as a single class.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. delivered its opinion to the Pharmacia board of directors that, as of July 13, 2002, and subject to the factors and assumptions set forth therein, the exchange ratio pursuant to the merger agreement was fair from a financial point of view to the holders of Pharmacia common stock.

Information about the Pfizer shares

Receipt of shares of Pfizer

The holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will be entitled to receive 1.4 newly issued shares of Pfizer for each depositary receipt held. The completion of the merger is currently expected to occur by the end of 2002. However, the timing of completion depends on external factors outside Pfizer's control.

As a result and in connection to the merger, the Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will be delisted from the Stockholmsbörsen. Pharmacia will as soon as possible announce last day for trading, delisting and delivery of Pfizer shares through a press release.

Pfizer currently has no intention to list its shares on Stockholmsbörsen or to register its shares with VPC.

Swedish shareholders in Pfizer

The Pfizer shares are non-Swedish securities and cannot be registered in a VP account. Pfizer intends to offer two different alternatives to hold shares for new shareholders in Pfizer: (1) in a newly opened account registered with Pfizer's American share registrar, EquiServe; or (2) in a newly opened or in an existing custodian account with a bank or other nominees. If you do not do anything and do not hold your Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia in a custodian account it is the intention that your shareholding will be registered with EquiServe as stated below.

Newly opened account with EquiServe

EquiServe is the holder of the Pfizer shareholder register and administers the shares of current Pfizer shareholders worldwide. Holding Pfizer shares with EquiServe is free of charge. The shares are electronic book-entry shares, in the same manner as with VPC, which means that no share certificates will be issued.

It is Pfizer's intention that holders of directly registered Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will be able to receive Pfizer shares automatically into an account opened on their behalf with EquiServe. EquiServe has the ability to hold fractions of shares, which means that holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will receive the exact number of shares of Pfizer, including fractions of shares, to which they are entitled. The shares of Pfizer will be made available in the former Swedish depositary receipt holders' newly opened accounts with EquiServe as soon as possible after the closing date. Pfizer expects this to occur within approximately 21 days of the closing. Former Swedish depositary receipt holders in Pharmacia will not be able to trade their new Pfizer shares until the new Pfizer shares are delivered into the individual accounts.

Newly opened or existing custodian account

Holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia who do not wish to have their Pfizer shares and fractional shares registered with EquiServe should contact a bank or a nominee in sufficient time before the closing date, and instruct them to transfer their holdings of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia from their VP account into a newly opened or existing custodian account. The exchange of shares will be made in accordance with the policies and practices of each nominee.

Holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia whose holdings already are held in the name of a bank, Aktiesparinvest or other nominee will not automatically have an account opened on their behalf with EquiServe. The newly issued shares of Pfizer will be registered on the custodian account in accordance with the policies and practices of each nominee.

Holding shares with EquiServe

For former holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia who have become Pfizer shareholders to be able to hold Pfizer shares in EquiServe in an efficient manner, certain administrative actions will need to be taken by such holders. Pfizer intends to distribute forms and additional information about EquiServe to holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia immediately after the special meeting of Pharmacia shareholders, requesting that such holders provide bank account information, and complete tax status forms. Once returned, this information will simplify any future receipt of dividends or proceeds from any sale of Pfizer shares.

Holding Pfizer shares directly with EquiServe may entail certain consequences for former holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia resident in Sweden, in respect of tax withholding and reporting. Further information will be provided after the special meeting. Please also refer to section Tax considerations for holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia.

A Swedish language help line will be established to answer questions about EquiServe and the share transfer process, and to provide help with completing the necessary forms. The phone number of Pfizer's shareholder service is 020-130 12 00.

Ability to trade shares held in EquiServe

EquiServe offers directly registered Pfizer shareholders the opportunity to sell their shares at low costs. Traditionally the cost has been 15 dollars plus 6 cents per share. After the merger, it is the intention that all Pfizer shareholders holding their shares with EquiServe, including former holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia, will be able to sell these shares without commission for a period through the end of March 2003. In the event that completion of the merger is delayed, Pfizer may extend this period. The dealing service provides shareholders with the opportunity to trade Pfizer shares on the New York Stock Exchange, by way of orders sent through a Swedish interactive telephone service, by internet or by mail. Further details on how to sell Pfizer shares registered with EquiServe will be distributed to holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia immediately after the special meeting of Pharmacia shareholders.

Shareholders whose holdings are registered with a bank, Aktiesparinvest or other nominee should send orders to their respective nominee in accordance with the policies and practices of each nominee.

Immediately following completion of the merger, it is expected that there will be approximately 7.986 billion shares of Pfizer outstanding. The shares of Pfizer common stock to be issued to Pharmacia shareholders and holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia in the merger will represent approximately 23 per cent of the outstanding Pfizer common stock after the merger on a fully diluted basis. This information is based on the number of Pfizer and Pharmacia shares and options outstanding on June 30, 2002.

Pfizer shareholders' meeting

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Pfizer shall be held on such date and at such time and place as the Pfizer board of directors may designate. The date, place and time of the annual meeting shall be stated in the notice of such meeting delivered to or mailed to shareholders. Generally, Pfizer's annual shareholders' meeting is held on the fourth Thursday of April. Assuming that Pfizer's annual meeting 2003 is held on schedule, the date of the meeting will be April 24, 2003. At such annual meeting the shareholders shall elect directors, in accordance with the requirements of the certificate of incorporation, and transact such other business as may properly be brought before the meeting. Written notice of an annual meeting shall be given to each shareholder entitled to vote thereat, not less than ten nor more than sixty days prior to the meeting. If mailed, such notice shall be deemed to be given when deposited in the mail, postage pre-paid, directed to the shareholder at his or her address as it appears on the records of Pfizer.

Dividends

Ordinary dividend payment

The holders of Pfizer common stock are entitled to receive, from funds legally available for the payment thereof, dividends when and as declared by resolution of Pfizer's board of directors, subject to any preferential dividend rights granted to the holders of any outstanding Pfizer preferred stock. Dividends are paid quarterly.

As a U.S. company, Pfizer pays dividends to holders of Pfizer shares in U.S. dollars and Pfizer shareholders resident outside the United States do not receive dividends from Pfizer in their local currencies. Dividends are usually distributed by cheque or electronic transfer.

In many countries, including Sweden, there are high costs levied by banks for receiving, holding or exchanging payments in foreign currencies. For this reason many of Pfizer's non-U.S. shareholders choose either to reinvest their dividends directly through the Pfizer dividend reinvestment program, which forms part of the Pfizer Shareholder Investment Program, described above, or to hold their Pfizer shares through a bank or nominee.

More information about this program will be distributed to holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia immediately after the special meeting of Pharmacia shareholders.

Temporary dividend in Swedish kronor

In order to give former holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia who have become Pfizer shareholders more time to make the arrangements necessary to receive dividends in U.S. dollars on the new Pfizer shares or to reinvest their dividends through the Pfizer Shareholder Investment Program, Pfizer intends to make the first two dividend payments following the closing date in Swedish kronor to those former holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia who have not made arrangements for receiving dividends in U.S. dollars. Swedish kronor dividends will be paid by electronic transfer to those shareholders that have returned bank account information to EquiServe. In the absence of bank account information, EquiServe will distribute cheques in Swedish kronor by mail. The amount received in Swedish kronor will be paid after deduction of foreign exchange costs.

Please also refer to the section Tax considerations for holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia regarding deductions of U.S. withholding tax and Swedish tax on dividends. Former holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia that have become Pfizer shareholders holding their shares with EquiServe should return the tax status form regardless of whether they receive dividends in U.S. dollars or in Swedish kronor.

Election of board of directors, executive officers and auditors

Election of Directors

The number of directors which shall constitute the whole board of directors in Pfizer shall not be less than ten, nor more than twenty-four, the exact number within said limits to be fixed from time to time solely by resolution of the board, acting by the vote of not less than a majority of the directors then in office. At the annual meeting, directors shall be elected on staggered terms in accordance with the requirements of Pfizer's by-laws and certificate of incorporation.

Pfizer's by-laws provide that only those persons nominated by the board of directors or by a shareholder of record of a class of shares entitled to vote for the election of directors who complies with the notice procedures in Pfizer's by-laws may be elected as directors. The notice procedure in Pfizer's by-laws require shareholders to give written notice to Pfizer as follows:

For an election to be held at an annual meeting, notice must be received:

not less than 60 days in advance of the meeting if the meeting is to be held on a day which is within 30 days preceding the anniversary of the previous year's annual meeting; or not less than 90 days in advance of the meeting if the meeting is to be held on or after the anniversary of the previous year's annual meeting.

With respect to any other annual meeting or special meeting of the shareholders, notice must be received by the close of business on the tenth day following the date on which public announcement of the date of the meeting was first made.

The notice must include, among other things, information on the nominating shareholder and information regarding the nominee required by the proxy rules of the SEC.

Pfizer's board of directors currently consists of sixteen directors divided into three classes, with each class elected for three-year terms whose terms expire at successive annual meetings. Six directors were elected at the annual meeting 2002 to serve for a three-year term expiring at the annual meeting in 2005.

Prior to the completion of the merger, Pfizer shall cause Mr. Fred Hassan, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Pharmacia, to be appointed to the board of directors of Pfizer, and elected Vice-Chairman of the combined company, in each case, effective as of the completion of the merger.

Election of Executive Officers

The board of directors of Pfizer, at its first meeting after each annual meeting, of shareholders, shall elect at least the following officers: a Chair of the board and/or a President, one or more Vice Presidents, a Controller, a Treasurer and a Secretary. The board may also elect, appoint, or provide for the appointment of such other officers and agents as may from time to time appear necessary or advisable in the conduct of the affairs of Pfizer. The board of directors may fill any vacancy occurring in any office of Pfizer at any regular or special meeting.

Election of Auditors

The board of directors of Pfizer, upon the recommendation of its Audit Committee, appoints the Pfizer's independent auditor, subject to the approval of Pfizer's shareholders.

Changes in the Certificate of Incorporation

Pfizer's certificate of incorporation generally may be amended by the affirmative vote of the majority of the outstanding shares; however the affirmative vote of 80% of the outstanding shares is necessary to amend certain sections of Article Seventh (related to the management and affairs of the company) and the entire Article Eighth (related to restrictions on actions and transactions by Pfizer and a related person).

At the Pfizer special meeting, the shareholders will be asked to approve an amendment to the Pfizer certificate of incorporation increasing the authorized number of shares in the company. Approval of the amendment requires the affirmative vote of at least a majority of the outstanding shares of Pfizer common stock. The merger cannot be completed unless the shareholders approve the amendment to the certificate of incorporation.

Fiscal year

Pfizer's fiscal year begins on the first day of January in each year and ends on December 31.

Tax considerations for holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia

The following is a description of certain Swedish tax consequences related to the merger between Pharmacia and Pfizer. The description is based on the laws of the Kingdom of Sweden as currently in effect¹ and is applicable to holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia who are residents of Sweden for tax purposes. The summary below is not intended to be exhaustive and does not cover tax issues in cases where securities are held as current assets in business operations or by a partnership. Special tax consequences that are not described below may arise. Holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia should therefore consult a tax advisor as to the tax consequences relating to their particular circumstances. Holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia not resident in Sweden, holders of US shares of Pharmacia and holders that move from Sweden after the merger is completed are especially encouraged to consult a tax advisor.

Summary

In the merger between Pharmacia and Pfizer, holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will be deemed to have disposed of their shares for consideration in Pfizer shares. As a general rule, the disposal will trigger capital gains taxation.

The Council for Advance Tax Rulings has, however, confirmed that the new provisions in respect of rollover relief are applicable in the contemplated merger. Under these provisions, which are applicable for individuals who are resident in Sweden, capital gains are not taxable and capital losses not deductible in a share-for-share exchange provided certain requirements are met. The tax basis for the Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will instead be rolled-over to the Pfizer received. Capital gains or capital losses will thus not be realized until the Pfizer shares are disposed of. Limited liability companies and other holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia for which the provisions in respect of roll-over relief are not applicable may, under certain circumstances, instead request deferred taxation of capital gains.

In order for the share-for-share exchange provisions to apply, it is necessary for Pfizer to own shares representing more than 50 per cent of the voting power of Pharmacia at the end of the calendar year in which the merger becomes effective, i.e. Pfizer may not dispose of the Pharmacia shares during the year when the merger becomes effective. Pfizer intends to hold shares in Pharmacia in such manner that this requirement will be met.

Any sale of Pfizer shares or fractional Pfizer shares is, however, subject to capital gains taxation.

Tax consequences of the merger

The merger between Pharmacia and Pfizer will, as a general rule, trigger capital gains taxation. The Council for Advance Tax Rulings has, however, confirmed that the provisions in respect of roll-over relief are applicable in the merger. This means that no taxable capital gain or deductible capital loss will arise for holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia that are individuals resident in Sweden. The tax basis for the Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will instead automatically be rolled-over to the Pfizer shares received.² Normally, there is thus no need for such individuals to report the merger in their tax returns. Limited liability companies and others must report the merger in their tax returns, but may instead claim deferred capital gains taxation, see below Deferred capital gains taxation.

A capital gain or a capital loss is computed as the difference between the revenue received³, after deduction for sales costs, and the tax basis. Any deferred tax amount (in Swedish uppskovsbelopp) will normally also become taxable. The tax basis of all securities of the same class and type are added together and computed collectively under the average method. Holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia that received shares in Monsanto Company in Pharmacia's distribution of such shares should note that a portion of the original tax basis of the Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia entitled to the distribution will be allocated to the Monsanto Company shares received. The tax basis of the Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will be reduced correspondingly. The National Tax Board intends to issue recommendations regarding the allocation of the tax basis in November. Since the shares in Pharmacia are listed, the tax basis for those shares may, as an alternative, be determined as 20 per cent of the net sale revenue in accordance with the standard rule.

For individuals, capital gains are taxed in the capital income category at a rate of 30 per cent. A capital loss may be fully offset against capital gains on shares and other listed securities that are taxed as shares realized in the same year as the loss. 70 per cent of a loss in excess of such gain will be deductible from other income from capital. If a net loss should arise in the capital income category in a given year, such excess net loss may reduce the tax on income from employment and business operations as well as real estate tax. The tax reduction is granted at 30 per cent of the net loss that does not exceed SEK 100,000 and at 21 per cent for any remaining part. Excess net loss not absorbed by these tax reductions cannot be carried forward to future tax years.

In a draft bill 2002-10-17 the Government proposed adjustments in the provisions regarding roll-over relief. If the merger is consummated in 2003, these proposals, if adopted, may partly affect future disposals of the Pfizer shares received.

² Each Swedish depositary receipt representing a share in the present Pharmacia was deemed to be acquired for SEK 428 (RSV S 2000:28) in the merger between Pharmacia & Upjohn and Monsanto Company in 2000. Any deferred tax amount (in Swedish uppskovsbelopp) will be rolled-over to the Pfizer shares received.³ When the consideration consists of shares, the revenue is normally valued as the fair market value of the shares received at the time of disposal which in this case will be when the merger becomes effective. Recommendations of this value will be requested from the National Tax Board. Information of the recommendations from the National Tax Board will be provided in a manner Pfizer finds suitable.

Limited liability companies are taxed on all income from business operations, including capital gains, as income from business operations at a rate of 28 per cent. However, see below regarding the possibility to defer the taxation of capital gains under certain circumstances. A capital loss incurred by a corporate shareholder that holds the shares as a capital investment may be offset only against capital gains on shares and other securities that are taxed as shares. Such capital losses may, under certain circumstances, also be deductible against capital gains on such securities within the same group of companies provided the requirements for group contributions are met. Capital losses, which have not been utilized within a certain year, may be carried forward and be offset against eligible capital gains in future years without limitation in time.

Deferred capital gains taxation

Limited liability companies and other holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia for which the provisions in respect of roll-over relief are not applicable may, provided certain requirements are met, obtain deferred capital gains taxation. Such holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia that wish to defer the tax on the capital gain under the tax deferral provisions have to report the capital gain in their tax returns for the year of the exchange and formally request a tax deferral. If a deferral is granted, the capital gain will be determined by the tax authorities in the form of a deferred tax amount (in Swedish uppskovsbelopp). The deferred tax amount will then be allocated to the Pfizer shares received.

If a deferral is granted, the capital gain will be taxed at the latest when the ownership of the Pfizer shares is transferred to a new owner or if the shares cease to exist. The capital gain will also become taxable if the shareholder so claims in the tax return.

Dividends

Dividends from Pfizer are generally subject to U.S. withholding tax at a rate of 30 per cent. However, under the tax treaty that Sweden has concluded with the U.S., the tax rate is reduced to 15 per cent for portfolio investments. The treaty rate is applied only if sufficient information regarding the tax residency of the shareholder is available. Should the information not be available, U.S. withholding tax is withheld at a rate of 30 per cent and the shareholder will have to claim a refund by himself. The gross dividend is also taxable in Sweden as income from capital at a rate of 30 per cent for individuals and as income from business operations at a rate of 28 per cent for limited liability companies. For shares that are nominee-registered, an additional Swedish preliminary tax of 15 per cent will normally be withheld on payments of dividends to Swedish individuals if the US withholding tax has been withheld with 15 per cent. This will, however, not be the case for shareholders holding their Pfizer shares with EquiServe. Those shareholders will instead have to pay the Swedish tax themselves. The U.S. withholding tax at the treaty rate of 15 per cent is creditable against the Swedish tax on the dividend.

If there is no Swedish tax on income in the same fiscal year, for instance when an individual declares a deficit in the capital income category, no foreign tax credit can be claimed that year. Instead, subject to certain limitations, the credit may be carried forward and be utilized by the shareholder in any of the three following fiscal years. Alternatively, the withholding tax may be deducted when the taxable income of the shareholder is computed. However, a tax credit of at least SEK 100 is permitted each year.

Net wealth tax

The shares of Pfizer shall be included in the taxable net wealth of the holder at 80 per cent of their quoted value at the end of the calendar year. If the merger is completed late in 2002 and no Pfizer shares have been received before year end of 2002, any claim on the Pfizer shares may be fully taxable at 100 per cent of the market value.

Further information regarding the tax consequences of owning and disposing of Pfizer shares will be provided immediately after the special meeting of Pharmacia shareholders.

Risk factors

Holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia should carefully consider the following factors, in addition to those factors discussed in the documents that have been filed with the SEC and which have been incorporated into the accompanying joint proxy statement, and the other information in this document and the accompanying joint proxy statement, before submitting a proxy for the Pharmacia special meeting.

The value of Pfizer shares received will fluctuate

The number of shares of Pfizer common stock issued in the merger for each share of Pharmacia common stock is fixed. The market prices of Pfizer common stock and Pharmacia common stock when the merger is completed may vary from their market prices at the date of this document and at the date of the special shareholders' meetings of Pfizer and Pharmacia. For example, during the 12 month period ending on October 18, 2002 the most recent practical date prior to the mailing of this information brochure, Pfizer common stock traded in a range from a low of $25.13 to a high of $44.04 and ended that period at $33.49, and Pharmacia common stock traded in a range from a low of $30.49 to a high of $46.87 and ended that period at $45.30.

These variations may be the result of various factors including:

- changes in the business, operations or prospects of Pfizer or Pharmacia;
- governmental and/or litigation developments and/or regulatory considerations;
- market assessments as to whether and when the merger will be consummated;
- governmental action affecting the pharmaceutical industry generally;
- loss of patent protection and competition from generic drugs; and
- general market and economic conditions.

The merger may not be completed until a significant period of time has passed after the Pfizer and Pharmacia special meetings. At the time of their respective special meetings, Pfizer and Pharmacia shareholders and holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will not know the exact value of the Pfizer common stock that will be issued in connection with the merger.

Shareholders of Pfizer and shareholders and holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia are urged to obtain current market quotations for Pfizer and Pharmacia common stock.

Pharmacia and Pfizer may be unable to successfully integrate their operations and realize the full cost savings that are anticipated

The merger involves the integration of two companies that have previously operated independently. The difficulties of combining the companies' operations include:

- the necessity of coordinating geographically separated organizations, systems and facilities; and
- integrating personnel with diverse business backgrounds.

The process of integrating operations could cause an interruption of, or loss of momentum in, the activities of one or more of the combined company's businesses and the loss of key personnel. The diversion of management's attention and any delays or difficulties encountered in connection with the merger and the integration of the two companies' operations could have an adverse effect on the business, results of operations, financial condition or prospects of the combined company after the merger.

Among the factors considered by the Pfizer and the Pharmacia boards of directors in connection with their respective approvals of the merger agreement were the opportunities for operating efficiencies that could result from the merger. The board of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer cannot give any assurance that these savings will be realized within the time periods contemplated or even if they will be realized at all.

Pharmacia and Pfizer will incur significant transaction, merger-related and restructuring costs in connection with the merger

Pfizer and Pharmacia expect to incur costs associated with combining the operations of the two companies, transaction fees and other costs related to the merger. The total estimate includes approximately $100 million for transaction costs and between $3.5 and $4.0 billion of restructuring and integration costs. The estimated $100 million of transaction costs are expected to be recorded as a component of the purchase price. Approximately $1 billion of the restructuring costs are expected to be included as a liability in the purchase price allocation. These amounts are preliminary estimates and subject to change. Additional unanticipated costs may be incurred in the integration of the businesses of Pfizer and Pharmacia. Although Pfizer and Pharmacia expect that the elimination of duplicative costs, as well as the realization of other efficiencies related to the integration of the businesses, may offset incremental transaction, merger-related and restructuring costs over time, the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer cannot give any assurance that this net benefit will be achieved in the near term, or at all.

Due to limitations imposed by antitrust and other laws, Pfizer and Pharmacia are unable to share information necessary to complete a compound-by-compound valuation of Pharmacia's in-process research and development. Pfizer's current estimate of the write-off of in-process Pharmacia research and development may not be accurate Under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended, and other relevant laws and regulations, there are significant limitations regarding what Pfizer can learn about specific Pharmacia scientific research projects that are under way. Pfizer and Pharmacia have not been able to discuss any specifics of many of the in-process research and development projects and the range of possible outcomes. As data that would be needed to conduct a valuation of specific projects cannot be shared due to the legal constraints, and as the process will take more than three months to complete, Pfizer has not done a compound-by-compound valuation of Pharmacia's in-process research and development. Instead, Pfizer determined the 13 billion dollar in-process research and development charge included as part of the Pro Forma Financial Data on pages II 1 through II 11 in the joint proxy statement and on pages 20 through 25 in this brochure was a reasonable estimate based upon what it knows about the various products within the Pharmacia pipeline indicated above and the market for such potential products, Pfizer's general understanding of Pharmacia's procedures, the amount of money spent on such projects to date and Pfizer's own extensive experience with R&D activities, including the probabilities of success of compounds in various stages of completion, as well as a review of publicly available information for precedent merger and acquisition transactions in the health care industry. Although the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer believe that Pfizer's estimate of the in-process research and development charge arising from the acquisition of the Pharmacia research portfolio is reasonable, no assurance can be given that a compound-by-compound valuation will confirm Pfizer's estimate. If Pfizer's estimate is lower or higher than the actual value of Pharmacia's in-process research and development the combined company will be required to take a one time charge or addition to earnings to reflect the difference in the period in which the compound-by-compound valuation is completed. The board of directors of Pfizer and Pharmacia expect the final evaluation to be completed within six to twelve months of the completion of the merger. See Pro Forma Financial Data on pages II 1 through II 11 in the joint proxy statement and on pages 20 through 25 in this brochure.

Obtaining required approvals and satisfying closing conditions may delay or prevent completion of the merger

Completion of the merger is conditioned upon the receipt of all material governmental authorizations, consents, orders and approvals, including the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting periods, and any extension of the waiting periods, under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended, and approval by the European Commission. Pfizer and Pharmacia intend to pursue all required approvals in accordance with the merger agreement. The requirement for these approvals could delay the completion of the merger for a significant period of time after Pfizer and Pharmacia shareholders have approved the proposals relating to the merger at their respective special meetings. No assurance can be given, however, that these approvals will be obtained or that the required conditions to closing will be satisfied, and, if all such approvals are obtained and the conditions are satisfied, no assurance can be given as to the terms, conditions and timing of the approvals or that they will satisfy the terms of the merger agreement.

Pfizer and Pharmacia are the subject of various legal proceedings

Pfizer and Pharmacia are involved in various patent, product liability, consumer, environmental and tax claims and litigations and additional matters that arise from time to time in the ordinary course of business. These include challenges to the coverage and/or validity of patents on products or processes and allegations of injuries caused by drugs or medical devices. In addition, Pfizer and Pharmacia are subject to national, state and local environmental laws and regulations. Pfizer and Pharmacia are also involved in or are the subject of governmental or regulatory agency inquiries or investigations from time to time.

The shares of Pfizer will not be listed on the Stockholmsbörsen

Pfizer currently has no intention of listing its shares on the Stockholmsbörsen. This means that the shares of Pfizer that the holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will receive in exchange for their depositary receipts cannot be sold on the Stockholmsbörsen and additional shares cannot be purchased on the Stockholmsbörsen.

The costs to buy or sell foreign securities that are not listed on the Stockholmsbörsen, such as the shares of Pfizer, may be higher than the costs the holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia incur at present when trading with their Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia on the Stockholmsbörsen. For further information see Information about the Pfizer shares.

Reasons for the merger

While each of Pfizer and Pharmacia has growth potential and prospects for its immediate and long-term future as a stand-alone entity, the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer believe that a combination of the two companies will create a leading global pharmaceutical company with greater diversity, breadth and financial resources that will have the opportunity to enhance shareholder value in ways that are unlikely to be achieved by Pfizer or Pharmacia alone. Specifically, the combined company would be uniquely positioned to benefit from the following:

Enhanced revenue potential resulting from, among other things:

- access to late stage pipeline drugs;
- enhanced capability to bring new products to market; and
- increased scale.

Significant cost savings from among other things, increased purchasing power as a combined company.

Combination of operational factors, such as growth opportunities and risk reductions with respect to research and development.

Leadership in major therapeutic categories.

Enhanced revenue potential

The merger will combine two large and fast-growing firms in the pharmaceutical industry, which will create the opportunity for solid growth potential, improved financial returns and accelerated earnings growth. The combined company would be a larger enterprise with a broader and more diversified product line than either Pfizer or Pharmacia on a stand-alone basis, with estimated potential combined revenues of $52.8 billion in 2003.

As competition intensifies in the industries in which Pfizer and Pharmacia participate, the boards of both companies believe that the combined company will benefit from an enhanced potential for revenue growth in the following areas and for the following reasons:

Pharmaceuticals. The combined company expects to have nearly $43.7 billion in prescription pharmaceutical sales in 2003. Together the two companies had eight products that they own with sales of more than $1 billion in 2001: Lipitor®, Viagra®, Norvasc®, Zoloft®, Zithromax®, Diflucan®, Neurontin® and Celebrex®¹ (which is co-promoted and co-marketed by Pfizer and Pharmacia). In addition, the combined company will promote 15 products which had sales in excess of $500 million each in 2001, including Zyrtec®, Xalatan®, Detrol®² /Detrol LA®³, Camptosar® and Accupril®, and ten of those products had an aggregate annual growth of 24 per cent or more in 2001. The boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer believe that the combined company's enhanced market presence and sales penetration in key products, coupled with its increased research and development capabilities may lead to the development of new pharmaceutical products. Its enhanced capabilities to successfully bring such products to market may lead to enhanced potential for revenue growth. Most of the major products of both Pfizer and Pharmacia will continue to have patent protection well into this decade and beyond. The boards of directors of Pfizer and Pharmacia believe that these factors provide the opportunity to support the combined growth of products in both Pfizer's and Pharmacia's pipelines of new products, as well as organic and geographic growth of present products.

New products and broad and diversified product line.

The combination of Pfizer's pipeline of new products with Pharmacia's pipeline of new products is expected to provide the combined company with the potential for enhanced revenue growth. In June 2002, the FDA approved the injectable form of Geodon®, making it the first atypical antipsychotic medicine for schizophrenia approved in the United States for intramuscular use. In May 2002, the FDA approved Vfend® for life threatening fungal infections. In April 2002, Bextra® was launched in the United States for the relief of pain and inflammation of osteoarthritis, adult rheumatoid arthritis and primary dysmenorrhea. Also, in April 2002, Spirival® (co-promoted with Boehringer-Ingelheim) was approved by regulatory authorities in Europe as a treatment for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease. The product was launched in six countries, including Germany in June 2002. On September 30, 2002, the FDA granted marketing approval for Pharmacia's INSPRA® (eplerenone tablets), the first agent designed to selectively block aldosterone, for the treatment of high blood pressure.

Increased scale. Scale has importance in many areas, including:

- financial strength;

- research and development of new products;

- improved marketing and sales support; and
- distribution capabilities, as well as enhancement of existing competencies.

The boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer believe the increased scale of the combined company, and the benefits in the areas mentioned above, could result in greater efficiency and an enhanced potential for revenue growth.

While the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer expect that they will be able to realize enhanced revenues, no assurance can be given that they will actually be able to do so.

Significant cost savings

The combined company is expected to increase its profitability through cost savings and operating efficiencies resulting from the elimination of duplicative facilities and functions which would exist in the combined company in the United States, through multiple organizations and systems in over thirty foreign countries, and through the benefits of leveraging our combined annual external purchases. Pfizer estimates that savings from reductions in cost of goods sold will be realized by optimization of global manufacturing, involving over 100 manufacturing sites of the two companies around the world. The combined company may also be able to leverage its marketing and sales infrastructure to support existing and new products. Savings from sales, general and administrative expenses are expected to be realized by the combination of two worldwide headquarters and multiple staff support functions in over thirty countries. In addition to the competitive advantage gained by the size of the research and development budget, the combination of the research and development programs will permit the combined company to utilize the best science, research, development capabilities and procedures of each company. Pfizer's human pharmaceutical research and development expenditures have been growing by a compound annual growth rate of 14 per cent over the last three years. Based on the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer review of and assumptions about the operations and infrastructure of the two companies, the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer expect that the combined company will realize annual cost savings of approximately $2.5 billion by 2005. The boards of both companies expect to achieve such cost savings as follows:

$1.4 billion by 2003;

$2.2 billion by 2004; and

$2.5 billion by 2005.

The estimated cost savings reflect the realization of cost reduction opportunities and efficiencies through the ability to consolidate separate stand-alone operations into a single entity. While the boards of directors of Pfizer and Pharmacia expect that they will be able to realize these cost savings, no assurance can be given that they will actually be able to do so.

The managements of both companies believe that the financial performance of the combined company will be enhanced by the potential cost savings expected from the merger.

In connection with the review of the merger, Pfizer and Pharmacia management each prepared financial forecasts for their respective organizations on a stand-alone, pre-merger basis. These forecasts were exchanged by Pfizer and Pharmacia and were presented to, and considered by, the members of each company's board of directors in its recommendation of the Pfizer/ Pharmacia transaction. Pharmacia and Pfizer have elected to provide individual forecasts for both Pfizer and Pharmacia because (i) the information was considered by the Boards of Directors in determining whether to enter into the merger agreement, (ii) they provide managements' views (as of the time they were developed) of the financial prospects of each constituent company on a stand-alone basis and (iii) they clarify the Pfizer view that the earnings forecast for the combined entity is greater than the sum of the two individual companies' forecasts. See pages 16 and 17 of this brochure for a discussion of anticipated combined adjusted earnings.

For Pfizer, the major assumptions underlying the Pfizer unaudited financial forecasts are: (i) product launches in several major markets during this timeframe; (ii) no loss of significant revenue to generic competition as a result of expiration or loss of patent protection; (iii) no material changes to Pfizer's U.S. pharmaceutical pricing and reimbursement practices; (iv) foreign exchange rates implicit when the forecasts were developed; (v) no material changes in the U.S. or international tax codes; and (vi) $10 billion in share repurchases are completed by the end of 2003.

For Pharmacia, the major assumptions underlying the Pharmacia unaudited financial forecasts are: (i) product launches in several major markets during this timeframe; (ii) no loss of significant revenue to generic competition as a result of expiration or loss of patent protection; (iii) no material changes to Pharmacia's U.S. pharmaceutical pricing and reimbursement practices; (iv) use of the foreign exchange rates prevailing at the time the forecasts were developed; and (v) no material changes in the U.S. or international tax codes.

Edgar Filing: PHARMACIA CORP /DE/ - Form 425

The financial forecasts are forward-looking statements and Pfizer's and/or Pharmacia's actual results may differ materially from those set forth in the forecasts. See the joint proxy statement section "Forward-Looking Statements" on pages I-23 and I-24 for a discussion of the risks you should consider in reviewing the forecasts set forth in this brochure.

The tables below set forth the anticipated adjusted earnings of Pfizer, Pharmacia's forecast, as adjusted by Pfizer with the concurrence of Pharmacia, and the anticipated adjusted earnings of the combined company. They are being set forth below because, in connection with its review of the merger, Pfizer's management developed the information to evaluate the potential benefits of the merger based on Pharmacia's forecast (as adjusted by Pfizer with the concurrence of Pharmacia). Adjusted earnings is equal to forecasted GAAP net income or loss, excluding discontinued operations, extraordinary items, plus the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle, plus certain significant items, plus charges related to purchase price allocations on assets (including write-off of in-process research and development, amortization of identifiable intangibles and charges related to write-up of assets to fair market value) plus merger-related costs (including integration expenses and restructuring charges). The major assumptions underlying the anticipated combined adjusted earnings set forth below are:

(1) product launches in several major markets during this timeframe; (2) no loss of significant revenue to generic competition as a result of expiration or loss of patent protection; (3) no material changes to Pfizer's and Pharmacia's U.S. pharmaceutical pricing and reimbursement practices; (4) estimates for Pfizer and Pharmacia are based on current accounting principles and business practices of each company which existed prior to the merger; harmonization of accounting principles and business practices after the merger may result in changes to the projected results; (5) foreign exchange rates implicit when the forecasts were developed; (6) merger-related cost savings of $1.4 billion and $2.2 billion are realized in 2003 and 2004, respectively; (7) no material changes in the U.S. or international tax codes; and (8) $16 billion in share repurchases are completed by the end of 2003. See the accompanying joint proxy statement under the section "Forward-Looking Statements" on pages I-23 and I-24 for a discussion of the factors that may impact the anticipated results in the following table:

Combination of operational factors

The boards of directors of Pfizer and Pharmacia expect the merger to provide for significant opportunities in sales and marketing and in research and development, including new opportunities for innovation in supporting existing products and bringing new products to market. The research and development resources of the combined company are expected to provide new opportunities for innovation and discovery. The research and development budget of the combined company is expected to be over $7 billion in 2003. While the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer expect that the combination of their complementary technology platforms will result in new opportunities for innovation in supporting existing products and bringing new products to market, no assurance can be given that they will be able to do so.

Completion of the merger

The merger

Exchange ratio

If the merger is completed, holders of Swedish depositary receipts in Pharmacia will receive 1.4 newly issued Pfizer shares for each Swedish depositary receipt in Pharmacia.

Timing of the merger

Unless the parties agree otherwise, the closing of the merger will take place on the first business day after all closing conditions have been satisfied or waived, unless the merger agreement has been terminated or another time or date is agreed to in writing by the parties.

As soon as practicable after the satisfaction or waiver of the conditions to the merger, Pfizer and Pharmacia will file a certificate of merger with the Delaware Secretary of State in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Delaware General Corporation Law and make all other required filings or recordings. The merger will become effective when the certificate of merger is filed or at such later time as Pfizer and Pharmacia agree and specify in the certificate of merger. The merger is currently expected to be completed by the end of 2002.

Conditions to the completion of the merger

Pfizer's and Pharmacia's respective obligations to complete the merger are subject to the satisfaction or, to the extent legally permissible, the waiver of the following conditions:

the adoption of the merger agreement by the Pharmacia shareholders (including holders of Swedish depositary receipt in Pharmacia), and the approval of the issuance of shares of Pfizer common stock in the merger and amendment to the Pfizer certificate of incorporation by Pfizer shareholders;

the absence of any law, order or injunction prohibiting completion of the merger in the United States or European Union;

the expiration or termination of the applicable waiting periods under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended;

the approval for listing by the New York Stock Exchange of the Pfizer stock to be issued in the merger, subject to official notice of issuance;

the SEC having declared effective the Pfizer registration statement, of which the joint proxy statement forms a part; and the receipt of all securities and blue sky permits and approvals necessary to consummate the transaction.

In addition, each of Pfizer's and Pharmacia's respective obligations to effect the merger are subject to the satisfaction or, to the extent legally permissible, the waiver of the following additional conditions:

the representations and warranties of the other company contained in the merger agreement which are qualified as to material adverse effect, being true and correct as of the date of the agreement and as of the closing date of the merger, except to the extent that such representation or warranty speaks as of another date;

the representations and warranties of the other company which are not qualified as to material adverse effect being true and correct except where the failure to be true or correct, individually or in the aggregate, would not have a material adverse effect on the other party, as of the date of the agreement and as of the closing date of the merger as if they were made on that date, except to the extent that such representation or warranty speaks as of another date;

the other party having performed or complied with all agreements or covenants required to be performed by it under the agreement which are qualified as to material adverse effect and the other party having performed or complied in all material respects with all other material agreements or covenants required to be performed by it under the agreement, in each case, at or prior to the closing date;

Pfizer having received a tax certificate when the Monsanto Company spin-off occurred, as set forth in the merger agreement;

no event having occurred which would trigger a distribution under the other company's shareholder rights plan;

the other party and its respective subsidiaries not having suffered from any change that would reasonably be expected to have a material adverse effect on such party; and the Monsanto Company spin-off having occurred (provided, however, Pharmacia, shall not be entitled to assert this condition to closing if it shall not have distributed its interest in the Monsanto Company to its common shareholders).

Accordingly, the purchase price allocation pro forma adjustments are preliminary and have been made solely for the purpose of providing unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial information.

Notes to unaudited pro forma condensed combined financial statements*1. Description of transaction and basis of presentation*

The merger agreement provides that each outstanding share of Pharmacia common stock will be exchanged for 1.4 shares of Pfizer common stock in a tax-free transaction. Pfizer will not issue fractional shares in the merger¹. As a result, the total number of shares of Pfizer common stock that each Pharmacia shareholder will receive in the merger will be rounded down to the nearest whole number, and each Pharmacia shareholder will receive a cash payment for the remaining fraction of a shares of Pfizer common stock that he or she would otherwise receive, if any, based on the market value of Pfizer common stock at the close of business at the date the merger became effective. Each share of Pharmacia Series C convertible perpetual preferred stock will be exchanged for a newly created class of Pfizer Series A convertible perpetual preferred stock with rights substantially similar to the rights of the Pharmacia Series C convertible perpetual preferred stock. The merger is expected to be completed by the end of 2002. The merger will be accounted for as a purchase by Pfizer under accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Under the purchase method of accounting, the assets and liabilities of Pharmacia will be recorded as of the acquisition date, at their respective fair values, and added to those of Pfizer. The reported financial condition and results of operations of Pfizer after completion of the merger will reflect these values, but will not be restated retroactively to reflect the historical financial position or results of operations of Pharmacia. The merger is subject to customary closing conditions, including regulatory approvals, as well as approval by Pfizer and Pharmacia shareholders of certain merger-related proposals.

One of the conditions of the merger agreement is that Pharmacia complete the distribution of its holding of Monsanto Company common stock to holders of Pharmacia common stock. The pro forma balance sheet as of June 30, 2002 assumes that the remaining outstanding shares of Monsanto Company held by Pharmacia were distributed to the Pharmacia shareholders in a tax-free spin-off transaction prior to June 30, 2002 (the assumed acquisition date for the pro forma balance sheet).

The boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer recognize that if the final valuation, which is expected to be completed within six to twelve months from the completion of the merger, derives different amounts from the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer $ 27 billion estimate, the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer will adjust these expected identifiable intangible amounts to those amounts.

(2) Included in Other noncurrent liabilities.

In accordance with the requirements of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 142, Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets (SFAS No. 142), the goodwill and the acquired indefinite-lived intangibles associated with the merger will not be amortized.

As required by Financial Accounting Standards Board Interpretation No. 4, Applicability of FASB Statement No. 2 to Business Combinations Accounted for by the Purchase Method (FIN 4), the purchase price allocated to in-process research and development will be immediately expensed.

The boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer do not have sufficient information at this time to provide specifics with regard to individual products, valuation methods and appraisal methods. Under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, as amended, and other relevant laws and regulations, there are significant limitations regarding what Pfizer can learn about specific Pharmacia scientific projects that are underway. Pfizer and Pharmacia have not been able to discuss any specifics of many of the in-process research and development projects and the range of possible outcomes.

A valuation performed using the guidance in Statement of Financial Accounting Standards (SFAS) No. 141, Business Combinations and the AICPA Practice Aid Assets Acquired in a Business Combination to Be Used In Research and Development Activities: A Focus on Software, Electronic Devices and Pharmaceutical Industries would recommend the fair value be determined using the income approach on a project by project basis utilizing the following information: a forecast of the estimated future net cash flows expected and then discontinuing these estimated future net cash flows to their present value using an appropriate discount rate that reflects the stage of completion (risk) of the project. This risk adjustment would reflect the probability of success of each project based upon the nature of the product, the scientific data associated with the technology, the current patent situation and the stage of completion of the project. The forecast of future cash flows would require the following assumptions to be made:

Revenue that is likely to result from both specific in-process research and development projects and research and development projects not yet commenced, including estimated number of units to be sold, estimated selling prices, estimated market penetration and estimated market share and year over year growth rates over the product life cycles.

Cost of sales related to the potential products using historical data, industry data or other sources of market data.

Sales and marketing expense using historical financial data of the acquired company, industry data or other market data.

General and administrative expense

R&D expense

As data that would be needed to conduct a valuation as described above of specific projects cannot be shared due to legal constraints, and as the process will take more than three months to complete, Pfizer has not done a compound-by-compound valuation of Pharmacia's in-process research and development. Pharmacia has approximately 100 projects in various stages of clinical development with 12 projects in Phase II and Phase III development. The more significant projects include the development of epleronone (for heart failure), sumanirole (for Parkinson's Disease), roflumilast (for asthma and chronic obstructive pulmonary disease), Xalcom (for glaucoma) and Somavert® (for acromegaly). Instead, Pfizer determined the $13 billion dollar in-process research and development charge included as part of the Pro Forma Financial Data was a reasonable estimate based upon what it knows about the various products within the Pharmacia pipeline indicated above and the market for such potential products, Pfizer's general understanding of Pharmacia's procedures, the amount of money spent on such projects to date and Pfizer's own extensive experience with R&D activities, including the probabilities of success of compounds in various stages of completion, as well as a review of publicly available information for precedent merger and acquisition transactions in the health care industry.

Although the boards of directors of Pharmacia and Pfizer believe that Pfizer's estimate of the in-process research and development charge arising from the acquisition of the Pharmacia research portfolio is reasonable, no assurance can be given that a compound-by-compound valuation in accordance with SFAS No. 141 based upon the above cited factors will confirm Pfizer's estimate. If the actual valuation, which is expected to be completed within six to twelve months from the completion of the merger derives a different amount from the $13 billion estimate, Pfizer will adjust the expected write-off to that amount. The expected write-off and related disclosures will be included in the combined company's periodic filings with the SEC.

3. Accounting policies and financial statement classifications

Upon completion of the merger, Pfizer and Pharmacia will review their accounting policies and financial statement classifications. As a result of that review, it may become necessary to make certain reclassifications to the combined company's financial statements to conform to those accounting policies and classifications that are determined to be more appropriate.

4. Intercompany transactions

Transactions between Pfizer and Pharmacia are primarily limited to the Celebrex^{®2} and Bextra[®] marketing agreements. Upon completion of the merger, transactions that occurred in connection with these arrangements would be considered intercompany transactions. All significant balances and transactions related to these arrangements have been eliminated from the Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Combined Financial Statements.

5. Pro Forma adjustments

Adjustments included in the column under the heading Pro Forma Adjustments primarily relate to the following:

(a) To eliminate balances and transactions between Pfizer and Pharmacia which, upon completion of the merger, would be considered intercompany balances and transactions. The majority of these transactions occurred under the Celebrex^{®1} and Bextra[®] marketing agreements.

additional depreciation expense related to the estimated fair value step up of the property, plant and equipment from the purchase price allocation, which is being depreciated over its estimated useful life of 10 years, of approximately $20 million in 2001 and $10 million in the first six months of 2002; and

The pro forma condensed combined financial statements do not reflect the approximately $1.1 billion impairment charge that Pharmacia will record in connection with Pharmacia's distribution of its holding in Monsanto Company to the holders of Pharmacia common stock. This impairment charge is directly attributable to Pharmacia's distribution of its holding in Monsanto Company to the holders of Pharmacia common stock, which occurred in August 2002 and not to the proposed merger of Pfizer and Pharmacia. The impairment charge will be included in Pharmacia's historical income statement for the third quarter of 2002, before the proposed merger of Pfizer and Pharmacia is completed, and will, therefore, not be reflected in the combined company's income statement. The pro forma condensed combined financial statements do not present a combined dividend per share amount. Pfizer's current quarterly dividend is $.13 ($.52 per share annualized) and is subject to future lawful approval and declaration by Pfizer's board of directors. Pharmacia's current quarterly dividend is $.135 ($.54 per share annualized) and is subject to future lawful approval and declaration by Pharmacia's board of directors. The dividend policy of the combined company will be determined by its board of directors following the merger.

Certain restructuring and integration charges may be recorded subsequent to the merger that, under purchase accounting, will not be treated as part of the Pharmacia purchase price. These costs, estimated to range between $2.5 and $3.0 billion, have not been reflected in these unaudited pro forma condensed income statements because they are not expected to have a continuing impact on the combined results.

Edgar Filing: PHARMACIA CORP /DE/ - Form 425

The pro forma combined basic and diluted earnings per share for the respective periods presented are based on the combined basic and diluted weighted average shares of Pfizer and Pharmacia. The historical basic and diluted weighted average shares of Pharmacia were converted at the exchange ratio of 1.4 shares of Pfizer common stock for each Pharmacia common stock equivalent.

The pro forma condensed combined financial statements do not reflect the expected realization of annual cost savings of $2.5 billion by 2005. These savings are expected to result from, among other things, the reduction of overhead expenses, changes in corporate infrastructure, the elimination of duplicative facilities and the leveraging of the combined annual external purchases. Although management expects that cost savings will result from the merger, there can be no assurance that these cost savings will be achieved.

Pfizer has not restated periods prior to 1998 for EITF Issue No. 00-25 because the data is not available.
