The Company's day-to-day business was dramatically disrupted by the events surrounding September 11. Substantially all of the Company's clients requested that their media schedules be suspended and rebooked to a later date in consideration of the tragedy. Over the subsequent weeks the media was re-planned, renegotiated and rebooked. As a result, and in light of the Company's limited administrative and financial personnel, the Company was unable to assemble all information required for the finalization of the Company's September 30, 2001 interim financial statements, or to coordinate with its independent accountants to assimilate all of the information needed for them to complete the review of such financial statements, in a timely manner. The process could not be completed by November 14, 2001 without unreasonable effort or expense.
