PRESS RELEASE

ARCADIS FINALIZES ACQUISITION OF PRC BOUWCENTRUM

ARNHEM, The Netherlands, November 14, 2003 ARCADIS (NASDAQ: ARCAF, Euronext: ARCAD), the international consulting and engineering company, today announced that it has closed the acquisition of PRC Bouwcentrum B.V. (PRC). PRC specializes in project management and provides consultancy and research services in construction, housing, spatial planning, infrastructure and sustainable development. PRC employs 350 people and its 2002 gross revenue was € 34 million. In October the shareholders of PRC (all employees of the firm) almost unanimously approved the acquisition. More recently, the Dutch competition authorities have also approved the acquisition.

PRC is primarily active in the markets for construction and infrastructure, with project management as its core competency, including consultancy on construction processes, project organization, design briefs, and cost management. This expertise is applied to housing issues for governments and companies, in health care and education, in urban renewal, in the development of commercial real estate and in infrastructure projects. The acquisition offers PRC access to the domestic and international marketing channels of ARCADIS for the sale of its expertise. PRC will remain active under its own name.

For ARCADIS the acquisition brings a significant expansion in project management. Harrie Noy, Chief Executive Officer, commented: "Client demand to completely outsource projects from development to operations, including the responsibility for time and costs, is increasing. In addition to technical competence, project management is a key to success in this market. The solid market position of PRC in the health care, education and housing markets is an important asset."
