MERGER MESSAGE STRATEGY

Prepared by: PUBLIC STRATEGIES INC

CORE MESSAGES

This merger is the natural integration of two industry leaders with highly COMPLEMENTARY strengths and customer bases.

Together, SBC and AT&T will bring new TECHNOLOGY to the market faster than either could have done alone.

This merger is essential because it prepares the communications industry for the FUTURE, keeping pace with an information-oriented world.

ELEVATOR PITCH

This merger is the natural integration of two industry leaders with highly COMPLEMENTARY strengths and customer bases.

Customers have embraced new technologies and hunger for more. Customer-demand and new technologies have completely re-shaped the face of telecommunications. Yesterday's telecom company is as obsolete as the original briefcase cell phone. This merger shows the world what the next generation of communications companies will look like.

This merger brings AT&T - an icon of American culture and industry - back into consumers' homes. It brings SBC into new geographic regions and into the enterprise space. This merger brings both SBC and AT&T into new territories, creating more value to more customers.

Together, SBC and AT&T will bring new TECHNOLOGY to the market faster than either could have done alone.

15 years ago the Internet seemed like something out of a sci-fi movie - today, we can't live without it. 15 years ago, the sound of a dial-up modem making a connection was the sound of state of the art technology. But in 2005 more homes will have broadband Internet connections than dial-up.

With complementary strengths and the exciting momentum of this merger, the combined SBC and AT&T will foster more innovation and bring new technologies to customers faster than either company could have done alone.

The pace of change is speeding up. We cannot afford to look at the telecommunications market through the rear-view mirror, while the rest of the world is speeding ahead on the information highway.

Europe and Asia are building double the high-speed Internet capacity as we are. The competition is offering voice communications over the Internet. WE need to offer the next NEW product - and the next one after that. This merger is a foundation for the American communications industry to lead the way.
