Investment Review

Strong fundamentals propelled real estate stocks to new highs in the first quarter, easily outpacing the broader markets. When concerns about inflation, Fed tightening and potentially slower economic growth spooked investors across markets, REITs also retrenched briefly. By June 30, however, the continued drumbeat of positive <sup>a</sup> As a closed-end investment company, the price of the fund's New York Stock Exchange-traded shares will be set by market forces and at times may deviate from the net asset value per share of the fund.

<sup>b</sup> The FTSE and NAREIT Equity REIT Index is an unmanaged, market capitalization weighted index of all publicly traded REITs that invest predominantly in the equity ownership of real estate. The index is designed to reflect the performance of all publicly traded equity REITs as a whole. The S&P 500 Index is an unmanaged index of common stocks that is frequently used as a general measure of stock market performance. The Merrill Lynch REIT Preferred Index is an unmanaged index of real estate preferred securities.

<sup>c</sup> Please note that distributions paid by the fund to shareholders are subject to recharacterization for tax purposes. The final tax treatment of these distributions is reported to shareholders after the close of each fiscal year on form 1099-DIV. To the extent the fund pays distributions in excess of its net investment company taxable income, this excess would be a tax-free return of capital distributed from the fund's assets. To the extent this occurs, the fund's shareholders of record would be notified of the approximate amount of capital returned for each such distribution. Distributions of capital decrease the fund's total assets and, therefore, could have the effect of increasing the fund's expense ratio. In addition, in order to make these distributions, the fund may have to sell portfolio securities at a less than opportune time.

developments in fundamentals for U.S. real estate drove U.S. REIT stocks back to within a couple of percentage points of their first-quarter closing levels.

We believe the broader stock market has been concerned that accelerating inflationary pressures would necessitate more Federal Reserve monetary tightening than previously expected, increasing the possibility of slower economic growth a condition we have been forecasting for some time. Interestingly, while a slowdown in economic growth and higher inflation are generally viewed as negatives for stock returns, we believe the current real estate recovery should progress quite nicely. Ongoing demand for real estate in an environment of moderate economic growth should, in our view, continue to outstrip the historically modest levels of new supply. In the past, inflation, an unequivocal negative for financial assets, has been a net positive for real property, and therefore REITs, relative to most other financial assets. It is not surprising, then, that real estate stocks fared better than the broader market this year.

It is also noteworthy that during the first half of 2006, the yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury bond increased from 4.4% to 5.1%. During this same period, REITs generated a total return of 12.9%, further confounding the many financial pundits who repeatedly mischaracterize REITs as interest-rate-sensitive stocks in the face of continued evidence to the contrary. While quantitative evidence has shown REITs historically to have had a low long-term correlation to interest rates, that perception still exists.

REIT stocks continued to respond to improving real estate fundamentals in the six months ending June 30. The top-performing sectors for the period were apartment (21.0% total return), office (19.8%) and hotel (17.2%) the three sectors that benefited most from the real estate recovery.

The apartment sector continued to advance as weakness in the for-sale housing markets continued to accrue to the benefit of apartment owners. The lack of affordability of owned housing in many U.S. markets has forced more households to choose renting as an alternative to buying a home. With reports of more children of baby boomers and an expanding workforce moving into apartments and fewer first-time home buyers moving out, apartment rents accelerated forcefully. Home Properties (39.7%) was the fund's top performer. Education Realty Trust, an owner of student housing, was second, with a total return of 34.6%. Conversely, GMH Communities Trust, another student housing company, was one of the fund's worst performers ( - 11.8%) as it struggled with company-specific issues.

Office properties benefited from strong corporate profit growth, which typically manifests itself in corporations hiring new employees and filling up office space. Two large transactions in the first half of the year underscored that. In March, the Blackstone Group paid $5.6 billion for CarrAmerica Realty, which had a 31.8% total return year-to-date and was one of the fund's top performers. The price implied a capitalization rate (the unleveraged initial yield) on CarrAmerica's real estate of 6.7%, better than the 7.5% assumed rate that most analysts had been using to value the company.

Then, on June 5, Trizec Properties announced that it was being acquired by Brookfield Properties and the Blackstone Group for $8.9 billion the largest REIT buyout since General Growth Properties purchased the Rouse

COHEN & STEERS TOTAL RETURN REALTY FUND, INC.

Company in 2004. The 18% stock price premium offered for Trizec was larger than the average premium in recent quarters, and reiterated to investors that most office REITs were trading at discounts to the value of their underlying office building assets.

The fund's overall performance benefited from its overweight position in the office sector. Other top performers were Equity Office Properties (22.7%) and Brandywine Realty Trust (17.0%), two of the fund's largest holdings. The fund's performance suffered from underweight positions in SL Green Realty (45.0%), Trizec Properties (26.8%) and Boston Properties (23.8%), as these companies do not pay sufficient dividends to meet the fund's income objective.

The hotel sector continued to benefit from strong demand from both the business and leisure travel segments, combined with negligible new construction. The fund benefited from its positions in Diamondrock Hospital (27.1% total return) and Hospitality Properties (13.4%), which were helped by rising occupancies and skyrocketing room rates. Another holding, Strategic Hotels, did not fare as well, advancing only 3.0% as the shares came under pressure in the second quarter from a large and costly equity offering that the company executed to help feed its ongoing acquisition program. The fund's underweight in the hotel sector overall detracted slightly from its relative performance. Here, too, hotel companies on average do not pay high enough dividends to meet the fund's income objective.

The self storage sector (11.3%) took a break from recent strong advances. Our stock selection in this sector detracted from the fund's performance due to positions in Extra Space Storage (8.6%) and U-Store-It ( 7.8%), and from not holding Public Storage (13.6%) and Shurgard Storage Center (12.3%).

Manufactured housing, the worst-performing sector ( -0.2%), continued to underperform, as the long-awaited recovery remained elusive. Free standing retail (2.6%) turned in a weak, but positive, performance. Regional malls (3.6%) rounded out the worst-performing sectors. Mills Corporation ( -34.6%), our worst performer, continued to struggle to meet the obligations of a public company to its shareholders.

The fund's REIT preferreds allocation delivered a 1.3% total return for the six month period, detracting from the fund's overall relative performance. Our strategy is to maintain a position in REIT preferred stocks to help the fund achieve higher current income than a portfolio of only U.S. REIT common stocks (our REIT preferred holdings had a 8.3% yield as of June 30) and to lower its overall volatility. Modest new supply in the REIT preferred space has been met with continued strong demand from income investors. Rapidly improving REIT fundamentals have made REIT preferreds very attractive income vehicles, and we have noted a broadening in the traditional buyer base over the past several quarters. Positive credit ratings agency activities have also helped to support the market.

We expect better performance from REIT preferreds later in the year. Improved performance should follow from a cessation of the Fed rate hike campaign and the economic slowing that we expect will follow. Notably, while we expect the economy to begin to cool, we nonetheless project continued improvements in REIT fundamentals. Hence, credit metrics should continue to improve for some time. One risk continues to be REIT privatization activity, which presents potential for credit downgrades.

Investment Outlook

During the second quarter, as it became apparent that rising inflation was going to require the Fed to slow U.S. GDP growth, the specter of "stagflation" reared its ugly head in the financial press for the first time since the 1970s. Indeed, recent days have marked the first time the market has had to face the combination of accelerating inflation and a potentially slower economy since that economically notorious decade. What might this imply for real estate stocks?

Land, the primary component of real estate that is responsible for the differentiated return that real estate has provided, is a unique asset class. Habitable urban land commands an economic rental payment that is based primarily on the proximity that it provides to other economic activity that is, its location. Unlike capital and labor the other two inputs to economic production, whose pricing power erodes further into an economic cycle as excess capacity is created to accommodate expanding demand land's value has typically continued to increase when the surrounding economic activity has increased, regardless of what happened to the monetary price level. In other words, inflation historically has not harmed land values the way it can harm financial assets like bonds and (other) stocks. Witness the net contraction of REIT multiples during the disinflationary 1980s and 1990s, and the expansion of REIT multiples since deflationary fears evaporated in 2003. Historically, landowners have enjoyed inflationary times. Note that, while the past is not necessarily indicative of future results, since the beginning of the modern REIT era in 1993, REIT stocks on average have increased their dividends at greater levels than the rate of inflation in every single year.

As a result, given our view of the state of relative balance of most real estate markets in the United States, we believe that modest reflation is a net positive for real estate stocks relative to most other financial assets. Of course, galloping inflation would increase uncertainty in the economy and could eventually severely curtail economic growth, which would not help real estate values or the REIT market. However, our belief is that the Federal Reserve knows how to do its job of maintaining relative price stability, and that the imbalances in the economy are manageable and do not represent significant structural impediments to its execution of what we believe will be a typical mid-cycle slowdown.

We are experiencing a transitory overlap of higher inflation and slower economic growth. Without large structural impediments to free-market economic flexibility, these two phenomena are generally incompatible. The Fed's job is to decide which of the two is less harmful to the overall economy. From a real estate standpoint, neither slightly higher inflation nor slightly lower economic growth (we estimate the 2% range) should, in our view, derail the steady real estate recovery that has thus far driven cash flow and dividend growth in the U.S. REIT sector.

<sup>b</sup> Total market value return is computed based upon the New York Stock Exchange market price of the fund's shares and excludes the effects of brokerage commissions. Dividends and distributions, if any, are assumed for purposes of this calculation, to be reinvested at prices obtained under the fund's dividend reinvestment plan. Total net asset value return measures the changes in value over the period indicated, taking into account dividends as reinvested.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS (Unaudited)

Note 1. Significant Accounting Policies

Cohen & Steers Total Return Realty Fund, Inc. (the fund) was incorporated under the laws of the State of Maryland on September 4, 1992 and is registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 as amended, as a nondiversified, closed-end management investment company. The fund's investment objective is maximum total return.

The following is a summary of significant accounting policies consistently followed by the fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The policies are in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (GAAP). The preparation of the financial statements in accordance with GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of income and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Portfolio Valuation: Investments in securities that are listed on the New York Stock Exchange are valued, except as indicated below, at the last sale price reflected at the close of the New York Stock Exchange on the business day as of which such value is being determined. If there has been no sale on such day, the securities are valued at the mean of the closing bid and asked prices for the day or, if no asked price is available, at the bid price.

Securities not listed on the New York Stock Exchange but listed on other domestic or foreign securities exchanges or admitted to trading on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotations, Inc. (Nasdaq) national market system are valued in a similar manner. Securities traded on more than one securities exchange are valued at the last sale price on the business day as of which such value is being determined as reflected on the tape at the close of the exchange representing the principal market for such securities.

Readily marketable securities traded in the over-the-counter market, including listed securities whose primary market is believed by Cohen & Steers Capital Management, Inc. to be over-the-counter, but excluding securities admitted to trading on the Nasdaq National List, are valued at the official closing prices as reported by Nasdaq, the National Quotation Bureau, or such other comparable sources as the Board of Directors deems appropriate to reflect their fair market value. If there has been no sale on such day, the securities are valued at the mean of the closing bid and asked prices for the day, or if no asked price is available, at the bid price. However, certain fixed-income securities may be valued on the basis of prices provided by a pricing service when such prices are believed by the Board of Directors to reflect the fair market value of such securities. Where securities are traded on more than one exchange and also over-the-counter, the securities will generally be valued using the quotations the Board of Directors believes most closely reflect the value of such securities.

Securities for which market prices are unavailable, or securities for which the advisor determines that bid and/or asked price does not reflect market value, will be valued at fair value pursuant to procedures approved by the fund's Board of Directors. Circumstances in which market prices may be unavailable include, but are not limited to, when trading in a security is suspended, the exchange on which the security is traded is subject to an unscheduled close or disruption or material events occur after the close of the exchange on which the security is principally traded. In these circumstances, the fund determines fair value in a manner that fairly reflects the market value of the security on the valuation date based on consideration of any information or factors it deems appropriate. These may include recent transactions in comparable securities, information relating to the specific security and developments in the markets.

The fund's use of fair value pricing may cause the net asset value of fund shares to differ from the net asset value that would be calculated using market quotations. Fair value pricing involves subjective judgments and it is possible that the fair value determined for a security may be materially different than the value that could be realized upon the sale of that security.

Short-term debt securities, which have a maturity date of 60 days or less, are valued at amortized cost, which approximates value.

Security Transactions and Investment Income: Security transactions are recorded on trade date. Realized gains and losses on investments sold are recorded on the basis of identified cost. Interest income is recorded on the accrual basis. Discounts are accreted and premiums are amortized over the life of the respective securities. Dividend income is recorded on the ex-dividend date. The fund records distributions received in excess of income from underlying investments as a reduction of cost of investments and/or realized gain. Such amounts are based on estimates if actual amounts are not available, and actual amounts of income, realized gain and return of capital may differ from the estimated amounts. The fund adjusts the estimated amounts of the components of distributions (and consequently its net investment income) as an increase to unrealized appreciation/(depreciation) and realized gain/(loss) on investments as necessary once the issuers provide information about the actual composition of the distributions.

Dividends and Distributions to Shareholders: Dividends from net investment income and capital gain distributions are determined in accordance with U.S. federal income tax regulations, which may differ from GAAP. Dividends from net investment income are declared and paid monthly. Net realized capital gains, unless offset by any available capital loss carryforward, are distributed to shareholders annually. Dividends and distributions to shareholders are recorded on the ex-dividend date and are automatically reinvested in full and fractional shares of the fund unless the shareholder has elected to have them paid in cash.

Distributions paid by the fund are subject to recharacterization for tax purposes. Based upon the results of operations for the six months ended June 30, 2006, the advisor considers it likely that a portion of the dividends will be reclassified to return of capital and distributions of net realized capital gains upon the final determination of the fund's taxable income for the year.

Federal Income Taxes: It is the policy of the fund to continue to qualify as a regulated investment company, if such qualification is in the best interest of the shareholders, by complying with the requirements of Subchapter M of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies, and by distributing substantially all of its taxable earnings to its shareholders. Accordingly, no provision for federal income or excise tax is necessary.

Borrowings and Leverage: The fund may borrow for leveraging purposes when an investment opportunity arises but the advisor believes that it is not appropriate to liquidate any existing investments. The fund will only borrow when the advisor believes that the cost of borrowing to carry the assets to be acquired through leverage will be lower than the return earned by the fund on its longer-term portfolio investments. Should the differential between interest rates on borrowed funds and the return from investment assets purchased with such funds narrow, the fund would realize less of a positive return, with the additional risk that, during periods of adverse market conditions, the market value of the fund's entire portfolio holdings (including those acquired through leverage) may decline far in excess of incremental returns the fund may have achieved in the interim. The fund had no borrowings during the six months ended June 30, 2006.

Note 2. Investment Advisory Fees and Other Transactions with Affiliates

Investment Advisory Fees: Cohen & Steers Capital Management, Inc. (the advisor) serves as the fund's investment advisor pursuant to an advisory agreement (the advisory agreement). Under the terms of the advisory agreement, the advisor provides the fund with day-to-day investment decisions and generally manages the fund's investments in accordance with the stated policies of the fund, subject to the supervision of the fund's Board of Directors.

For the services under the advisory agreement, the fund pays the advisor an advisory fee, accrued daily and paid monthly, at an annual rate of 0.70% of the fund's average daily net assets.

Directors' and Officers' Fees: Certain directors and officers of the fund are also directors, officers, and/or employees of the advisor. The fund does not pay compensation to any affiliated directors and officers except for the Chief Compliance Officer, who received $547 from the fund for the six months ended June 30, 2006.

Note 3. Purchases and Sales of Securities

Purchases and sales of securities, excluding short-term investments, for the six months ended June 30, 2006 totaled $19,586,153 and $18,594,290 respectively.

Note 4. Income Tax Information

As of June 30, 2006, the federal tax cost and net unrealized appreciation were as follows:

Cost for federal income tax purposes	$ 114,379,093
Gross unrealized appreciation	$ 62,410,222
Gross unrealized depreciation	(541,428)
Net unrealized appreciation	$ 61,868,794

COHEN & STEERS TOTAL RETURN REALTY FUND, INC.

Note 5. Common Stock

The fund is authorized to issue 100 million shares of common stock at a par value of $0.001 per share. At June 30, 2006, the advisor owned 51,989 shares or 0.6% of the fund. During the six months ended June 30, 2006 and the year ended December 31, 2005, there were no transactions in shares of common stock.

Note 6. Other

In the normal course of business, the fund enters into contracts that provide general indemnifications. The fund's maximum exposure under these arrangements is dependent on claims that may be made against the fund in the future and, therefore, cannot be estimated; however, based on experience, the risk of material loss from such claims is considered remote.

In July 2006, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued Interpretation 48, Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes an interpretation of FASB Statement 109 (FIN 48). FIN 48 clarifies the accounting for income taxes by prescribing the minimum recognition threshold a tax position must meet before being recognized in the financial statements. FIN 48 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2006. The fund will adopt FIN 48 during 2007 and the impact to the fund's financial statements, if any, is currently being assessed.

The fund files its complete schedule of portfolio holdings with the SEC for the first and third quarters of each fiscal year on Form N-Q. The fund's Forms N-Q are available (i) without charge, upon request by calling 800-330-7348, or (ii) on the SEC's Web site at <http://www.sec.gov>. In addition, the Forms N-Q may be reviewed and copied at the SEC's Public Reference Room in Washington, DC. Information on the operation of the Public Reference Room may be obtained by calling 800-SEC-0330.

Thomas N. Bohjalian has been appointed as a portfolio manager of the fund. He joined the investment manager in 2002 and is currently a senior vice president. Prior to joining the investment manager, Mr. Bohjalian was a vice president and REIT analyst for five years at AEW Capital Management.

The Board of Directors of the fund has adopted a new investment policy to allow up to 20% of the funds' assets to be invested in foreign securities. Please note that the fund may be subject to investment risks with respect to foreign securities that are different in some respects from those of domestic issuers, including currency risks, future political and economic developments and possible imposition of foreign withholding taxes. In addition, there may be less publicly available information about a foreign issuer than a domestic issuer, and foreign issuers may not be subject to the same accounting, auditing and financial recordkeeping standards and requirements as domestic issuers.

Please note that the distributions paid by the fund to shareholders are subject to recharacterization for tax purposes. The fund may also pay distributions in excess of the fund's net investment company taxable income and this excess would be a tax-free return of capital distributed from the fund's assets. To the extent this occurs, the fund's shareholders of record will be notified of the estimated amount of capital returned to shareholders for each such distribution and this information will also be available at cohenandsteers.com. The final tax treatment of all distributions is reported to shareholders on their 1099-DIV forms, which are mailed after the close of each calendar year. Distributions of capital decrease the fund's total assets and, therefore, could have the effect of increasing the fund's expense ratio. In addition, in order to make these distributions, the fund may have to sell portfolio securities at a less than opportune time.
