ITEM 5. OTHER EVENTS

On April 1, 2004, i2 Technologies (Netherlands) B.V. (i2 BV), a subsidiary of i2 Technologies, Inc. (the Company), received notice from Shell Global Solutions International B.V. (Shell) that Shell was purporting to terminate the license and development agreement, dated as of December 24, 2001, between i2 BV and Shell pursuant to which i2 BV and Shell have been developing a supply chain software package for the downstream oil industry. As the basis for Shell 's purported notice of termination, Shell alleged that i2 had failed to meet the accepted criteria for a development milestone by the due date for such milestone and failed to cure such deficiency within 30 days of receipt of notice.

The Company does not believe that Shell has a valid legal basis to terminate the license and development agreement. The Company intends to take any and all actions to vigorously defend its position with regard to the Agreement and to enforce all available legal rights and remedies.
