Non-GAAP Financial Measures in October 23, 2005 Press Release.

The attached press release dated October 23, 2005 contains non-GAAP financial measures. In evaluating the Company's performance, management uses certain non-GAAP financial measures to supplement consolidated financial statements prepared under GAAP.

Non-GAAP Earnings Measure. The Company uses a non-GAAP earnings measure in its public statements. Management believes this non-GAAP measure helps indicate the Company's baseline performance before gains, losses or charges that are considered by management to be outside on-going operating results. Accordingly, management uses this non-GAAP measure to gain a better understanding of the Company's comparative operating performance from period-to-period and as a basis for planning and forecasting future periods. Management believes this non-GAAP measure, when read in conjunction with the Company's GAAP financials, provides useful information to investors by offering:

the ability to make more meaningful period-to-period comparisons of the Company's on-going operating results;

the ability to better identify trends in the Company's underlying business and perform related trend analysis;

a better understanding of how management plans and measures the Company's underlying business; and an easier way to compare the Company's most recent results of operations against investor and analyst financial models.

The non-GAAP earnings measure used by the Company is defined to exclude the following charges and benefits: amortization of intangible assets and stock-based compensation expense, each net of tax and the non-cash income tax benefit. Management believes that the expense associated with the amortization of acquisition-related intangible assets is appropriate to be excluded because a significant portion of the purchase price for acquisitions may be allocated to intangible assets that have short lives and exclusion of the amortization expense allows comparisons of operating results that are consistent over time for both the Company's newly acquired and long-held businesses. Management also believes that the exclusion of stock-based compensation allows for more accurate comparisons of our operating results to our peer companies because of varying available valuation methodologies, subjective assumptions and the variety of award types which effect the calculations of stock based compensation. Further, we believe that excluding stock-based compensation expense allows for a more accurate comparison of our financial results to previous periods during which our equity-based awards were not required to be reflected on our income statement. Finally, we believe that it is appropriate to exclude non-cash income tax benefits related to the release of its deferred tax asset valuation allowance as this additional income is not indicative of the Company's ongoing operating results or income tax rate.

Organic Growth Measures. The Company also uses organic growth measures in its public statements, which exclude the results of the revenue contribution of CRS Retail Technology Group, a wholly owned subsidiary of the Company which was acquired in December 2005. Management believes this non-GAAP measure, when read in conjunction with the Company's GAAP financials, provides useful information to investors by offering them the ability to make more meaningful period-to-period comparisons of the Company's on-going operating results and the ability to better identify trends in the Company's underlying business. Management also uses this non-GAAP measure to perform trend analysis in the Company's underlying business.

General. These non-GAAP measures have limitations, however, because they do not include all items of income and expense that impact the Company's operations. Management compensates for these limitations by also considering the Company's GAAP results. The non-GAAP financial measures the Company uses are not prepared in accordance with, and should not be considered an alternative to, measurements required by GAAP, such as operating income, net income and income per share, and should not be considered measures of the Company's liquidity. The presentation of this additional information is not meant to be considered in isolation or as a substitute for the most directly comparable GAAP measures. In addition, these non-GAAP financial measures may not be comparable to similar measures reported by other companies.
