The Boards of Directors of IBERDROLA and ScottishPower, meeting yesterday in Madrid and Glasgow respectively, have reached agreement on the terms of an offer that ScottishPower's top corporate governing body will recommend unanimously to its shareholders for the sale of the company to the Spanish utility.

According to the terms of the agreement, the shareholders of ScottishPower will receive 400 pence in cash and 0.1646 new shares of IBERDROLA (valued at 365 pence based on yesterday's closing price) for each of their shares. (Holders of ScottishPower ADS's will receive 1,600 pence and 0.6584 new shares of IBERDROLA per ADS.)

In addition, before the transaction is completed, ScottishPower will approve an extraordinary dividend of 12 pence per share (48 pence for each ADS), which will be paid once it is consummated. At IBERDROLA's yesterday's (Monday, November 27) closing share price of €32.75 and an exchange rate of €1.4755 per £1, the terms of the offer value each ScottishPower share at 777 pence and the entire issued share capital of ScottishPower at circa €17,200 million. As a result of the transaction, Scottish Power shareholders are expected to receive about 21.4% of the enlarged, IBERDROLA once the planned capital increase is carried out.

The Board of Directors of ScottishPower, which has been advised by Morgan Stanley and to date controls approximately 0.1% of the company's capital, considers the terms of the acquisition offer fair and reasonable and will recommend unanimously to the company's shareholders that they vote in favour of it at their Extraordinary General Shareholders Meeting, which is expected to be held in the first quarter of 2007.

The merger of ABN AMRO-advised IBERDROLA and ScottishPower is subject, among other things, to approval by the shareholders of both companies and by certain regulatory authorities, including the European Commission and the U.S. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Ignacio Galán and Philip Bowman

Ignacio Galán, Chairman of IBERDROLA, commented that the proposed integration of ScottishPower with Iberdrola, which is consistent with our respective strategic plans, will result in the third largest European utility, will create value for both our Companies and will be very positive for employees and customers both of whom will benefit from the competitive advantages of the new group.

We will be able to achieve prompt synergies and access economies of scale in the medium and long term through common systems and processes. The new group will be well positioned for the future European energy market and will enjoy a strong growth platform in Spain, the United Kingdom, Continental Europe, USA and the global market, particularly in renewable energy, a sector in which it will be a world leader. All of this will be positive for all our stakeholders.

Philip Bowman, Chief Executive of ScottishPower, explained that while all of the business units of ScottishPower have shown their strength during the last 12 months, corporate movements have decisively transformed the landscape of the electric sector in Europe. Scottish Power needs to expand into other territories, diversify its operating risks, obtain greater economies of scale and have the financial strength necessary to invest in major infrastructure that will be necessary in the coming years.

Bowman stated that this transaction manages to reach all these objectives, avoiding the negative consequences that most potential mergers would entail for employees. The combination of both companies will allow ScottishPower to develop on a global scale in a progressively more competitive environment, and the terms offered by IBERDROLA provide an attractive price for our shareholders, at the same time allowing those who so wish, to continue to hold shares in the merged company.

The merger of IBERDROLA and ScottishPower is strategically complementary and will create an European leader, with a pro-forma enterprise value of circa €64 billion, a broad geographical presence and a firm foundation for continued growth in the future.

The operating synergies deriving from the transaction are expected to reach €130 million a year, coming, among other things, from operating and financial cost savings, improvements in generation and distribution units, and the management of renewable facilities.

On the basis of pro forma figures up to September 2006, the new merged Group will have installed capacity of 36,600 megawatts (MW) and 21.4 million power supply points. Furthermore, the merger of IBERDROLA and ScottishPower will consolidate the leadership in the renewable energy sector, with an installed capacity of 6,040 MW.

IBERDROLA values both the ability and the experience of the management team and employees of ScottishPower, who will be indispensable for bringing the transaction to its proper completion and whom it expects to continue to play a vital role in the company's future development.

ScottishPower is an international energy company that transports and distributes electricity in the United Kingdom, markets electricity and gas to industrial and domestic customers in that country, and has generating plants and gas storage facilities in the United Kingdom and North America. The company had earnings of £5.446 billion and an operating profit of £870 million for the financial year ending 31 March 2006.

IBERDROLA, a hundred-year-old Spanish-based company, is among Europe's major electrical companies and operates gas and electricity businesses in 28 countries. In addition, it is one of the world leaders in the production of wind-generated power. It achieved income of €11.738 billion in 2005, with an operating profit of €2.262 billion.
