(4) Date Filed:

This Schedule 14A filing consists of the following communication relating to the proposed acquisition of CA, Inc. (CA) by Broadcom Inc. (Broadcom), a Delaware corporation, and Collie Acquisition Corp., a Delaware corporation and a wholly owned subsidiary of Broadcom (Merger Sub), pursuant to the terms of an Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated July 11, 2018, by and among CA, Broadcom and Merger Sub:

Letter to CA Employees from Broadcom CEO, first used or made available on August 7, 2018

To All CA Employees:

Over the last few weeks, I have been on the road with Mike visiting a number of CA sites around the world, first in the Czech Republic at the Prague site and then in Massachusetts at the Burlington site. We then visited two offices in the same day, Plano and Santa Clara. We will also be going to India where we'll spend time in Hyderabad.

During these visits, Mike and I have been hosting hour-long town hall sessions during which we've discussed who Broadcom is as a company and why we are excited about our future with CA. As I recognize that not everyone is able to attend these sessions, I thought I'd take this opportunity to write to you with an update.

We like to say that at Broadcom, we're connecting everything. This is because every day, millions of devices around the world are enhanced with innovative solutions from Broadcom. In fact, we believe 99.9% of all internet traffic crosses at least one Broadcom chip. Our commitment to innovation and R&D is integral to who we are as a company.

Built on 50 years of innovation and engineering excellence, our company has deep roots tracing back to the early days of the microelectronics industry and a strong heritage of acquiring and investing in world-class technology. Importantly—and as I've discussed at length with Mike—we have a proven track record of successfully integrating the companies that we acquire. We invest in these companies so they can grow and develop, and in doing so, we've consistently driven growth across our business and delivered tremendous value to our shareholders.

We also discussed the why as Broadcom seeks to build a leading infrastructure technology platform, software is a natural complement to our leadership in semiconductors. We see a lot of value in CA's mainframe and enterprise software franchises. We believe that adding these franchises into our portfolio of mission critical technology businesses will create significant value.

Finally, we spent time discussing Broadcom's longer-term plans for CA, including around technology and people. While there's a lot of work to do between now and closing, especially as it relates to integration planning, here are a few of the questions that were top-of-mind for those in the room:

What does this mean for CA employees? Will you grow the combined employee base? Will I have a role in the combined company?

First, you should know that Broadcom intends to preserve the value that CA brings as much as possible, and that includes the talented team at CA. As it relates to jobs and roles, although it's early at this stage to discuss specifics, Broadcom shares CA's vision of helping great talent thrive. As we move forward together, we expect that there will be growth opportunities for CA employees within the larger combined company.

What is Broadcom's approach to compensation and benefits?

Attractive compensation is one of our core values at Broadcom. We will share more information about our specific benefits programs as the integration process progresses, but you should know that roughly 90% of Broadcom employees receive equity as part of their total compensation. So when our shareholders do well, so do our employees.

What does this mean for CA's salesforce model?

We intend to preserve CA's enterprise salesforce model, customer support and product delivery for the foreseeable future. Decisions around customer selling opportunities following the closing will be made during the integration planning period and discussed at or promptly after the closing.

What happens to CA's facilities?

It is too soon to get into integration specifics, but I look forward to sitting down with the integration planning team at CA to determine what makes the most sense for the combined company following the closing.

How will you help engineers get on board and hit the ground running?

When we buy companies, our goal is to learn from those organizations and how they do things best. Simply put, no one knows your franchise better than you. This philosophy is one of the reasons our acquisitions have been so successful.

I plan to meet with many more of you in-person following the closing of the transaction. Between now and that time, we'll be working on the integration planning and on ensuring a seamless transition following the closing. As we have additional updates to share, we will do so.

We hope you are as excited about our future together as we are.

Regards,

Hock Tan

President and CEO of Broadcom
