Unilever CEO Announcement
Paul Polman to retire; Alan Jope appointed as successor

London / Rotterdam, 29 November 2018: Unilever today announced that CEO Paul Polman has decided to retire from the company. Alan Jope, currently President, Beauty & Personal Care, has been appointed to the position, effective 1 January 2019, with Polman supporting the transition process during the first half of the year.

Paul Polman has been Unilever CEO for over 10 years and has worked in the consumer goods industry for almost four decades. During his tenure, the company has delivered consistent top and bottom line growth ahead of its markets. Its focus on successfully pioneering a new model of sustainable growth has served the needs of its many stakeholders and created excellent returns for its shareholders, delivering a Total Shareholder Return of 290% over that period.

Alan Jope, 54, has led Beauty & Personal Care, Unilever's largest Division, since 2014 and has been on the company's Leadership Executive since 2011. He has an excellent track record of leading Unilever's business in both developed and emerging markets, having run the company's North Asia business for four years, served as President, Russia, Africa & Middle East, and spent over a decade in senior Foods, Home Care and Personal Care roles for Unilever US. Alan joined the company as a graduate marketing trainee in 1985.

Unilever Chairman Marijn Dekkers said: "Paul is an exceptional business leader who has transformed Unilever, making it one of the best-performing companies in its sector, and one of the most admired businesses in the world. His role in helping to define a new era of responsible capitalism, embodied in the Unilever Sustainable Living Plan, marks him out as one of the most far-sighted business leaders of his generation.

"Paul's vision, drive and performance focus, combined with his commitment to serving the best long-term interests of the company, have materially strengthened Unilever. He leaves a more agile and resilient company, well placed to win in this fast-changing, dynamic industry. I'd like to thank him personally, and on behalf of the Board, for his contribution to Unilever.

"After a rigorous and wide-ranging selection process, the Board is delighted to appoint Alan to the role. Having worked for Unilever in a variety of senior management roles, Alan has a deep understanding and experience of our business, the industry, and the markets in which we operate. He is a strong, dynamic and values-driven leader with an impressive track record of delivering consistent high-quality performance. The Board warmly welcomes Alan to the role and wishes him every success."

Paul Polman said: "I congratulate Alan on his appointment and look forward to working with him on the transition. Having worked closely with Alan for many years, I am highly confident that under his leadership, Unilever will prosper long into the future. His appointment demonstrates the strength of Unilever's succession planning and talent pipeline.

"It has been an honour to lead Unilever over the last 10 years. Throughout this time, I have been humbled by the commitment and hard work of our people, and their passion for creating a truly purpose-driven company. I am very grateful to them, as I am to Unilever's many other stakeholders, with whom we have worked to build our long-term, sustainable business. I look forward to engaging with many of these partners - in a different capacity - to help address the many environmental and social challenges facing the world."

Alan Jope said: "It will be a huge privilege to lead Unilever - a truly global company full of talented people, and brilliant brands. Over the 30 years I have worked at Unilever, I have seen the many ways in which our brands improve people's lives, positively impacting more than 2 billion citizens every day.

"Our global footprint includes strong positions in many important markets for the future and our focus will remain on serving our consumers, and our other multiple stakeholders, to deliver long-term growth and value creation.

"I'd also like to extend my gratitude to Paul for his remarkable leadership of Unilever and look forward to working closely with him during the transition."

Polman will retire as CEO and as a Board member on 31 December 2018. He will support the transition process in the first half of 2019 and will leave the company in early July.

A successor to the role of President, Beauty & Personal Care will be announced shortly.

NOTES TO EDITORS

Paul Polman, Biography

Paul Polman joined Unilever as CEO in January 2009. Over the last 10 years, Unilever has:

- achieved consistent top and bottom line growth, ahead of its markets;
- grown its presence in emerging markets, from 47% of Group turnover to nearly 60% of Group turnover;
- reshaped its portfolio, making more than 50 acquisitions;
- invested significantly in its brands, with Kantar Worldpanel naming 12 of Unilever's brands in the world's top 50 - more than any other company;
- helped more than 600m people improve their health & hygiene, improved the livelihoods of over 700,000 smallholder farmers and 1.6m small-scale retailers, reduced its waste impact by 29% and now sources 56% of its agricultural raw materials sustainably;
- launched the first-of-its kind Human Rights Report, in accordance with the UN Guiding Principles Reporting Framework;
- led its Industry or Sector in the Dow Jones Sustainability Index (DJSI) for nine out of 10 years;
- been ranked by Globescan as the top global corporate sustainability leader for the last eight years;
- delivered a Total Shareholder Return of 290%.

Paul is also Chair of the International Chamber of Commerce, a member of the International Business Council of the World Economic Forum, Chair of The B-Team, vice-chair of the UN Global Compact, Chair of the Global Advisory Board of One Young World, and a board member of the Consumer Goods Forum. He has been on the Board of Dow since 2010 and DowDuPont since 2017.

In recognition of Unilever's commitment to a long-term, multi-stakeholder business model, Paul has received numerous awards and accolades during his tenure. These include the Rainforest Alliance Lifetime Achievement Award, the Oslo Business for Peace Award, the UN Environment Programme's Champion of the Earth Award and the Singapore Government Public Service Star. In 2016, he received France's Chevalier de la Légion d'Honneur in recognition of his efforts in galvanising business action on sustainability. In 2018, he was named an Honorary Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire (KBE) for services to business and received the Treaties of Nijmegen Medal, in recognition of his contribution to building a more sustainable world.

He earned a BBA/BA from the University of Groningen, Netherlands, in 1977 and an MA Economics and MBA finance/international marketing from the University of Cincinnati in 1979. He has been awarded honorary degrees from a number of Universities, including Northumbria, Liverpool, Groningen, Cincinnati, and an honorary Doctorate of Science from the University of Cranfield.

Paul is married with three children. In a personal capacity, Paul is Chairman of Perkins School for the Blind International Advisory Board and serves as President of the Kilimanjaro Blind Trust.

Alan Jope, Biography

Alan Jope has extensive experience across many of Unilever's markets globally. Alan was born in Scotland and joined Unilever in London in 1985, subsequently living and working in North America for 14 years and in Asia for 13 years. He is currently serving as President, Beauty & Personal Care (BPC), Unilever's largest Division with annual turnover of €21bn in 2017, which accounts for around 40% of Unilever's revenues and almost 50% of operating profit.

From 2009 Alan led Unilever's business in China and North Asia, doubling its size and laying important foundations for future success. He was appointed to Unilever's Leadership Executive in 2011. His previous senior roles have also included President, Russia, Africa & Middle East, global category leader for several of Unilever's Foods businesses, and President of Unilever's Home & Personal Care business in North America. Earlier, Alan worked in a number of sales and marketing roles in the UK, Thailand, and the US.

Alan holds a Bachelor of Commerce with honours from Edinburgh University, Scotland. He also graduated from Harvard Business School's General Management Program in 2001. Alan is married and has three children.

Remuneration Disclosure

Paul Polman

Paul Polman will be treated in accordance with Unilever's approved remuneration policy. He will step down from the Board of Unilever on 31 December 2018 and will retire from employment on 2 July 2019, following a period of transition to his successor. He will continue to be paid in line with Unilever's normal remuneration policy during this period. Treatment of all elements of his remuneration will be in line with the remuneration policy set out in the 2017 Annual Report and Accounts.

Any bonus Paul Polman will be awarded for 2018 will be invested in Unilever shares with a holding period of two years. No further incentive awards will be made to Paul Polman. His existing long-term incentive awards will continue to vest on their normal timeframe in accordance with Unilever's actual performance and will be pro-rated to reflect only that portion of the vesting period served up until his retirement.

All payments are subject to required tax withholdings. Full details of all payments made to and receivable by Paul Polman will be disclosed on the Unilever website in due course in compliance with Section 430 (2B) of the Companies Act 2006 and in the Directors' Remuneration Report within the Company's Annual Report and Accounts for the year ending 31 December 2018, and subsequent years, as appropriate.

Alan Jope

Alan Jope will be paid in accordance with Unilever's remuneration policy as approved by shareholders at the 2018 AGMs. He will be eligible for:

- Fixed Pay, which will be set initially at Euros 1,450,000 gross per annum.
- Target annual bonus at 150% of Fixed Pay, with actual bonus in the range of 0% to 225% of Fixed Pay
- Investment of up to 67% of actual annual bonus in Unilever shares through MCIP, with a target match share award of 1.5 shares for every share purchased. The actual MCIP Match share award will be in the range of zero to three shares (200%) based on Unilever's actual performance over the four year duration of the MCIP cycle.
