South Meadow electric generating station (the "Station") by The Connecticut Light and Power Company ("CL&P") to the Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority ("CRRA"). CL&P is an electric company subsidiary of Northeast Utilities ("NU"), a registered holding company. CRRA is a public instrumentality and political subdivision of the State of Connecticut established by statute for the performance of essential public and governmental functions involving handling and disposal of solid waste, and resource recovery in Connecticut.

2. The proposed sale of the Station (the "Transaction") is documented in a Title Transfer Agreement, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit B.1 to this Application/Declaration. The Station generates electricity (a) from steam derived from combustion of municipal solid waste in boilers owned by CRRA turning two steam turbines owned by CL&P and (b) by use of four jet turbine sets owned by CL&P. The capability of the Station is approximately 250 megawatts. As of November 30, 2000 the net book value (excluding dismantlement reserves) of the Station was approximately $2.9 million, as shown below:

Description	Amount
Historical Cost	$96,032,021
