EBITDA. The Company believes EBITDA is useful to an investor in evaluating the Company s operating performance and liquidity because:

it is a widely accepted financial indicator of a company s ability to service its debt and the Company is required to comply with certain covenants and borrowing limitations that are based on variations of EBITDA in certain of the Company s financing documents;

it is widely used to measure a company s operating performance without regard to items such as depreciation and amortization, which can vary depending upon accounting methods and the book value of assets, and to present a meaningful measure of corporate performance exclusive of the Company s capital structure and the method by which assets were acquired; and it helps investors to more meaningfully evaluate and compare the results of the Company s operations from period to period by removing from the Company s operating results the impact of its capital structure, primarily interest expense from the Company s outstanding debt, and asset base, primarily depreciation and amortization of the Company s properties.

The Company s management uses EBITDA:

as a measurement of operating performance because it assists the Company in comparing its performance on a consistent basis, as it removes from the Company s operating results the impact of the Company s capital structure, which includes interest expense from the Company s outstanding debt, and the Company s asset base, which includes depreciation and amortization of the Company s properties;

in presentations to the members of the Company s board of directors to enable the board to have the same consistent measurement basis of operating performance used by management; and as the basis for incentive bonuses paid to selected members of senior and center-level management.

Financial Measures Excluding the Impact of Share-Based Compensation Expense. The Company provides certain financial measures for the first quarter of 2006, as well as guidance for fiscal 2006 with respect to net income and diluted earnings per common share, excluding the impact of share-based compensation expense. The Company s management uses these measures to monitor and evaluate operating results and trends and to gain an understanding of the comparative operating performance of the Company. The Company believes these measures enable investors to assess the Company s performance on the same basis applied by management and to ease comparisons of the Company s operating performance from period to period and among other companies that separately identify share-based compensation expenses.
