ITEM 8.01 OTHER EVENTS

On January 27, 2005 the Company announced that its preferred stockholders have agreed in principal to convert all of the outstanding shares of the Company's convertible preferred stock into common stock. Upon conversion of the preferred stock, the Company's outstanding common shares will increase to approximately 650 million shares from the 17 million current outstanding common shares. The conversion of the preferred stock will eliminate the preferred stockholders' right to receive a preferential distribution of approximately $292 million in any sale or liquidation of the Company.

In connection with the conversion, the holders of preferred stock plan to enter into an agreement to restrict the selling of the common stock held by such preferred stockholders for six months. The lock-up agreement could be terminated early in the event of an underwritten public offering of the Company's stock or upon the agreement of the Company and all of the stockholders party to the agreement. Under the agreement, the stockholders would sell no more than 0.33% of Cogent's outstanding common stock, i.e. approximately 2 million shares, in any one-month period for a total of 2% (approximately 13 million shares) over the six-month lock-up period.. The agreement in principal was announced in a press release, dated January 27, 2005, which is attached as an exhibit hereto and incorporated herein by reference.
