"NASDAQ has extensive experience in integrating technologies and businesses and we will be able to seamlessly integrate PHLX with the NASDAQ Stock Market."

Nasdaq Press Release, 7 November 2007

The integration of both the PHLX and OMX acquisitions are tracking significantly ahead of schedule. Management moved forward its accretion targets for both transactions to 4Q08 and 1Q09, respectively.

Jeffries & Co. Analyst Note, August 2008

Integration

Execution

This combination[with OMX] provides our organizations with the ability to grow and accelerate the global flow of equity capital. At the same time, it provides us with an excellent platform for further expansion into derivatives and other asset classes.

Nasdaq / OMX Press Release, 25 May 2007

the company has been able to integrate acquisitions well given the superior scalability of its operating platform and maintain much higher operating margins than its major competitor.

William Blair & Co. Analyst Note, June 2009

Execution

Performance

We've committed certain synergy targets on both the revenue and the expense side for the large deals and we're doing what we do well, and that is to focus on the operation and the execution of the business plan, and that's what we're focused on right now.

Bob Greifeld, Financial Times View from the Top Interview, 11 March 2008

We view deal integration and cost extraction as a core strength for NASDAQ. As the company realizes deal-related cost synergies associated with its recent and upcoming acquisitions we expect the company will experience significant margin expansion back toward the levels experienced by legacy NASDAQ.

Of this amount, approximately $250 million result from the overall rationalisation of the combined group's IT systems and platforms.

NYSE Press Release, 1 June 2006

NYSE predicted that the deal would globally redefine the marketplace for trading cash and derivatives securities, producing significant benefits for shareholders, issuers, and users.

Four years later the NYSE and Euronext haven't even integrated their trading platforms.

Competition for Listings

Creates deeper & more liquid markets

Improves transparency

Standardizes market access & connectivity

Enhances effectiveness of regulation

Creates a better advocate for issuers on regulatory matters

Global competition for listings is growing & the U.S. is losing ground

An increasing number of companies, including U.S. firms, now list outside their home markets

The market for raising capital is not limited to listings and includes private equity

The combined company can create a more attractive platform for raising capital and increase U.S. competitiveness in the global listings market

Listing fees and rules are closely regulated

Competition in the U.S. is limited and largely about services that are also offered by a wide variety of other companies

Equity and options trading markets are fragmented and highly competitive

Low barriers to entry exist to create new trading venues

Regulatory and Competitive Considerations

Regulatory Benefits

Trading Competition

From 1995 to 2010, listings on U.S. exchanges shrank from 8,000 to 5,000 while listings on non-U.S. exchanges grew from 23,000 to 40,000

Since 2006, only 9 of the 100 largest IPOs listed in the U.S.
