What Makes BankAnnapolis a Great Partner?

Company Background

Annapolis Bancorp, Inc. is the holding company for BankAnnapolis, a federally insured, community-oriented bank, and the only independent commercial bank headquartered in Annapolis, Maryland. The Bank operates as a full-service commercial bank from its headquarters in Annapolis and serves the banking needs of small businesses, professional concerns and individuals through its seven branches in Anne Arundel County, Maryland, and one branch on Kent Island in Queen Anne's County, Maryland. The eighth BankAnnapolis branch was opened just last week in the Waugh Chapel Towne Centre in Gambrills, Maryland.

The Bank's primary business includes originating loans (commercial, commercial real estate, construction, one- to four-family real estate, home equity and consumer), as well as attracting deposits.

A Commitment to Community

Much like FNB, BankAnnapolis is a relationship-focused bank with a notable community presence and strong local ties. In 2011, BankAnnapolis was named Corporate Philanthropist of the Year by the Community Foundation of Anne Arundel County based on its direct support of local nonprofits, the impact of that support, success in motivating employees to make charitable contributions, and the CEO's philanthropic leadership and ability to encourage and motivate others to give back.

BankAnnapolis also received the 2011 Financial Services Award from the Annapolis and Anne Arundel County Chamber of Commerce for its innovation and leadership in the identification of financial products and services that best fit the needs of the community.

A History of Strong Leadership

Richard M. Lerner has served in his current role as CEO of Annapolis Bancorp, Inc. since 1999 and as Chairman since 2001. He has also served as Chairman of the Bank since 1999.

In 2002, he was appointed President and CEO of the Bank, a position he held on an interim basis in 1999. Prior to joining Annapolis Bancorp, Mr. Lerner was President of White Flint Builders, Inc., an upscale residential development and construction company located in Bethesda, Maryland. He earned a Masters in Business Administration from Tulane University's A. B. Freeman School of Business. A resident of Annapolis, he is a current member of the Hospice of the Chesapeake Foundation and the Foundation for Community Partnerships. Mr. Lerner will remain with First National Bank to provide transitional support as Cross-Functional Leader for the newly established Maryland Region.

BRAC as an Additional Growth Factor

To more fully understand the business potential of this new market, it is necessary to consider the impact of the Department of Defense's Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) process on the region. BRAC, as it is commonly known, references the identification of bases and military installations for closure and/or realignment.

While Maryland has always played a significant role in the nation's military history, more recent BRAC decisions, initiated in 2005 and completed in 2011, have made the region the center of focus for homeland security and defense functions. This focus has created an influx of defense contractors, job seekers and businesses seeking BRAC-related opportunities. The economic stimulus of BRAC is still being felt throughout the State of Maryland and, more specifically, in the county of Anne Arundel.

Fort Meade's Effect on the Business Environment

Fort Meade, one of the largest military bases in the U.S., is located in Anne Arundel County. Situated on 5,415 acres, Fort Meade is a virtual city with more than 65 miles of paved roads and 1,300 buildings. Today, Fort Meade's primary mission is the support of the Cyber and Information Assurance Centers of the Departments of Defense and Homeland Security, earning it the status as one of the nation's premier defense, intelligence and technology centers.

Fort Meade employs 56,000 people, 85% of whom reside off-site. By 2015, that number is expected to reach 60,000, and significant growth is likely to continue. Activity at Fort Meade profoundly affects the surrounding region:

26 new defense contractors have been drawn to the area

51 other defense contractors have expanded their presence in and around Fort Meade

$500 million of federal construction has built 1.4 million square feet of office and laboratory space at Fort Meade

5.4 million square feet of office space has been built or is in the planning stages in the area surrounding Fort Meade

A Sustainable Model in a New Market

Strategic Alignment

Annapolis Bancorp presents an attractive opportunity to enter markets with evident growth potential, as is consistent with F.N.B. Corporation's stated strategy. Specifically, Annapolis Bancorp's existing market offers concentrated commercial and industrial business opportunities that make it a natural progression for F.N.B. Corporation.

Extending a Proven Business Model

Annapolis Bancorp, often referenced as ANNB, is well-positioned within a competitive, high-growth market that presents significant retail, wealth management, private banking and insurance opportunities. Additionally, FNB's newly extended footprint will be in relative proximity to greater Baltimore and Washington D.C., creating strong commercial opportunities with access to more than 35,000 companies between $1 million and $5 million revenue within a 50 mile radius.

By relying on an established cross-functional sales management process, a successful regional model and a dedication to superior customer service, FNB will use its scalable business model to turn opportunity into growth. That growth ultimately rests on our ability to successfully deliver sophisticated financial solutions to each customer we serve.

Both BankAnnapolis and FNB have been committed to customer relationship management as a means of growth, while operating conservatively. This focus will continue, and our customers will benefit from enhanced customer service through an expanded network of branches and ATMs, as well as a greater line of product offerings. Expanded access to our banking services means a better banking experience for everyone.

A Message to the Team

From Vincent J. Delie, Jr.,

President & CEO, F.N.B. Corporation

FNB has completed nine bank acquisitions since 2002, and two of those have occurred since the beginning of 2011. When considering a potential merger, we rely on a disciplined decision-making process that ensures some key outcomes:

a transaction that is strategically sound and accretive, meaning that it will result in growth for our company a strong position in strategically important markets

successful implementation of our sustainable business model that emphasizes disciplined risk management, a focus on growth, a strong service culture, employee recognition and training, a dedicated sales environment and continued long-term growth for our shareholders. Once a sound decision has been made, it is incumbent upon each of us across the organization to work together to accomplish a streamlined, efficient process that minimizes customer disruption and strengthens the FNB reputation.

I am proud to say that our team has the expertise and dedication to successfully manage the multiple components of a merger process. Our success will be in the details carried out by each support team and the front-line staff across our organization. Your professionalism, dedication and commitment to service excellence are some of the very reasons First National Bank continues to be recognized as a top workplace.

I thank you in advance for the commitment of your time and energy as we work together to ensure that the customers and employees of BankAnnapolis are smoothly transitioned into the FNB Family.

A Look at the New FNB Footprint

The First National Bank footprint currently represents over 260 banking offices in 45 counties in Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia. When our partnership with BankAnnapolis is complete, we will add two counties in Maryland and a total of eight banking offices.

The combination of the two organizations means that we will maintain our position as the 4th largest bank holding company headquartered in Pennsylvania with approximately $12.2 billion in total assets.

FNB will add the new Maryland Region as a fifth region in alignment with our existing management model that encourages strong local ties and efficient local decision making.
