Key Messages for International Unions

WHAT WILL THE NEW AIRLINE LOOK LIKE?

This is an historic day for us. American and US Airways have agreed to join together to create the new American Airlines – a premier global carrier.

After months of exhaustive analysis, we concluded that a merger is the best outcome for our company and our people.

We will have an expanded global network, a strong financial foundation, a modern, efficient fleet and the industry’s best people. In all, we will have more than 6,700 daily flights to 336 destinations in 56 countries across the globe.

Customers will have access to more choices and increased service across the combined company’s larger worldwide network and through an enhanced oneworld® Alliance – including joint businesses with British Airways and Iberia across the Atlantic and with Japan Airlines and Qantas across the Pacific – creating more options for travel and benefits both domestically and internationally.

We expect to keep all hubs now served by both airlines and expand service in non-hub cities, providing more travel options for our customers and more opportunity for our people.

The new American’s headquarters will be in Dallas-Fort Worth, with the combined company also keeping a significant presence in Phoenix.

WHY NOW?

Our hard work at restructuring over the course of the last year resulted in making our airline better. We accomplished a lot in a very short amount of time. We now have real momentum as we move to improve our operations, renew the fleet and modernize our airline.

Edgar Filing: US AIRWAYS GROUP INC - Form 425

American's many strengths, combined with the significant progress we've made in our restructuring, allowed us to shape a deal that works. Many experienced financial analysts, including American's advisors, have evaluated the potential of the merger, and have concluded that it will deliver real value to our financial stakeholders, our partners and our people.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN FOR UNIONIZED WORKGROUPS?

In the immediate future, there won't be a lot of significant changes. We will continue to operate as separate and independent carriers. The most important thing we can all do now is keep our focus on our customers and take care of each other.

As part of our international team, there is an added level of complexity because we must ensure that any changes take into account the unique labor and legal environments of each country. Throughout the process, we will work with each of our international workgroups and appropriate government regulators.

In international markets currently served by American and US Airways, a successful merger will require a successful integration of operations and workgroups, which will take time and effort. Between now and closing of the merger, which we expect to occur in the third quarter later this year, a transition team made up of people from both airlines will develop a carefully constructed integration process to help assure a smooth transition.

WHAT ABOUT LONG-TERM IMPROVEMENTS?

Employees of the combined airline will benefit from being part of a company with a more competitive and stable financial foundation. This will lead to more opportunities for our team.

Upon completion of the merger, we will be in a better position to compete and win against Delta, United and other global carriers, which means long-term stability and career growth for our people. The merger creates a path for competitive compensation and benefits and more opportunities for all employees.

When the merger is complete, we will have even greater ability to invest in our business. We plan to continue to introduce new products and technologies to deliver a comfortable, connected travel experience for our customers.

HOW LONG WILL ALL OF THIS TAKE? WHEN WILL THE MERGER BE COMPLETE?

This merger requires Bankruptcy Court approval of our Plan of Reorganization and various regulatory and US Airway stockholder approvals before the merger can be closed. We expect that to occur in the third quarter later this year. Using previous airline mergers as a guide, it could then take a year or two before we are fully integrated.
