GOL Records a Load Factor of 73.6% and Demand Growth of 11.2% in October

Demand in the domestic and international markets grows by 8.3% and 37.8%, respectively, over October 2009.

São Paulo, November 8, 2010 GOL Linhas Aéreas Inteligentes S.A.(BM&FBovespa: GOLL4 and NYSE: GOL), the largest low-cost and low-fare airline in Latin America, recorded an 11.2% year-on-year demand increase of its route network, led by the 37.8% upturn in international demand.

Demand

In October 2010, demand on the Company's total route network increased by 11.2% over October 2009 and by 0.6% over the previous month.

Demand on the domestic market moved up by 8.3% year-on-year, driven by a combination of: (i) more frequent and regular flights between Brazil's main airports; (ii) improved punctuality and regularity indicators; (iii) dynamic fare management, encouraging demand from leisure travelers booking their trips in advance; (iv) the revitalization of the SMILES mileage program; and (v) a focus on short-haul flights (around 95% of GOL's flights last for less than three hours);

(*)October 2010 - preliminary figures; October 2009 and September 2010 ANAC figures.

Demand on the Company's international route network grew by 37.8% year-on-year, and fell by 1.2% over September 2010, mainly due to the continuing recovery of the Latin American economy, as well as: (i) the launch of new VARIG routes to the Caribbean; (ii) adjustments to the international route network with a focus on profitability (especially in Argentina, Chile and Uruguay); (iii) the use of B767s for international charter flights; and (iv) the appreciation of the Brazilian real against the U.S. dollar, favoring tourism in the Southern Cone and the Caribbean.

Capacity

Capacity increased by 8.8% over October 2009 (in line with its disciplined capacity addition), chiefly due to the improved economic scenario in Brazil and Latin America, in addition to: (i) the maintenance of a longer average flight stage; (ii) increased aircraft productivity; (iii) fleet renewal (replacing B737-300s with 737-700/800s, which have more seats); and (iv) the reactivation of B767 aircraft for international charter flights, allowing the Company to dilute the fixed leasing costs of these assets.

In comparison with September 2010, supply moved up by 3.0%, mainly due to higher fleet utilization.

Load Factor and Yield

As a result of the factors mentioned above, GOL's total load factor in October 2010 came to 73.6% (1.6 p.p. up year-on-year and 1.7 p.p. down on the month before). Yield was approximately R$ 19.00 cents (R$), 10.4% higher than in October 2009, while revenue per passenger climbed by more than 22%.

(1) Available seat kilometers (ASK) is the sum of the products obtained by multiplying the number of seats available on each flight stage by the distance of the average flight stage.

(2) Revenue passenger kilometers (RPK) is the sum of the products obtained by multiplying the number of revenue passengers carried on each flight stage by the average stage distance.

(3) Load factor is the percentage of aircraft seating capacity effectively used, which is calculated by dividing the number of passenger-kilometers flown by the number of seat-kilometers available.<0 }
