Presentation of Quarterly Operating Earnings on Risk Based Capital and Economic Capital Allocation Basis for the Quarterly Reporting Periods
March 31, 2000 September 30, 2002

As discussed at its 2002 Investor Day, MetLife, Inc. will be changing its capital allocation methodology beginning in 2003 from one utilizing risk based capital to one based on economic capital. Such a change in the capital allocation methodology will affect investment income and operating earnings by segment prospectively. The following tables are provided to reflect the impact this change would have had on these results for the historical periods presented. The financial results presented below on a risk based capital basis were previously reported in the Company's Quarterly Financial Supplements for the applicable periods. The economic capital-based results in the tables reflect the change in the capital allocated to each segment and the resulting changes in investment income.

The tables are provided for the convenience of the users of our financial information and are for illustrative purposes only. They do not reflect, nor does the Company intend in the future to effect, a restatement of its results for such historical periods on an economic capital basis.
