A LETTER FROM KB HOME PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Dear Fellow KB Home Stockholders:

2010 was a year of diligent work, continuous improvement and tremendous accomplishment for KB Home. Based on the ongoing execution of our comprehensive strategy to transform and re-position our business, we were very pleased to conclude our 2010 fiscal year with a profitable fourth quarter and second half.

Our results demonstrated that our strategy is working, and that we can operate a profitable homebuilding company even at today's historically low levels of new home sales. Moreover, we believe we are poised to capitalize on future growth opportunities for our business when the housing markets eventually stabilize and recover.

I would like to share with you the primary tenets of our strategy as a company, both now and over the past few years, all of which are grounded in the disciplined operating principles of our KB_{next} Built to Order business model that have guided our company for almost 15 years.

Driving our Results

The housing environment over the past year was perhaps the most challenging KB Home has experienced since the company began building homes for families in 1957. In the face of persistent economic uncertainty, low consumer confidence and high unemployment, we have concentrated on the areas that are within our control in an effort to deliver results regardless of market conditions.

With this in mind, our 2010 accomplishments included:

- dramatically lowering our cost to operate, including reducing our selling, general and administrative expenses, while retaining our growth platform for future opportunities;
- opening new communities in 14 locations within what we consider to be the best performing submarkets, offering homes designed specifically to meet the needs of local buyers;
- expanding our year-over-year housing gross margins each and every quarter, despite pricing pressures in most markets;
- maintaining a total cash balance at year-end in excess of $1 billion; and
- enhancing our brand awareness and achieving record high customer satisfaction levels.

Even as headwinds in the housing market continue to adversely impact new home sales and deliveries, we remain focused on our operational excellence to improve many areas of our business and drive our financial results.

Transforming our Business

Our positive earnings in the second half of 2010 signified the culmination of many years of hard work since the housing downturn began in mid-2006. At that time, KB Home quickly moved to transform our business and product offerings to compete in a new environment in which inventory swelled, home prices declined, and foreclosure homes became our biggest competition.

Throughout 2010 we continued to execute our comprehensive and consistent strategy to preserve cash, reduce debt, exit underperforming markets, and generally re-size our operations to fit current market realities. Along the way, we made some changes in our business that are not only benefiting KB Home, but are also leaving a lasting impression on our entire industry.

Differentiating our Products

One of our innovations was the development and launch of our new line of homes that could be built more efficiently and less expensively without compromising quality and design. The Open Series captured the sensibilities and needs of a new kind of homebuyer in the marketplace, delivering open, flexible designs that were affordably priced to compete directly with foreclosures and other resale homes. We further improved and refined our successful Open Series product offerings in 2010, and they remain extremely relevant to today's value-conscious homebuyers.

We have also found ways to build more earth-friendly features into our homes through our My Home. My Earth. environmental initiative without materially affecting prices, keeping our homes affordable while helping our buyers to save money on their monthly utility bills and to conserve natural resources.

KB Home was recently named the #1 Green Homebuilder based on a study conducted by Calvert Investments, a leading asset management firm in the area of sustainable and responsible investing. Our overall score was almost double that of the next best performing homebuilder and over 10 times the average score of the remaining eight builders in the study. This independent recognition of our sustainability program is increasingly important among today's investors and consumers, and we are continuing to raise the bar in our industry.

In February 2011, we were pleased to announce a new initiative to provide a KB Home Energy Performance Guide (EPG) with all of our new homes. Like an MPG sticker found on all new cars, the KB Home EPG contains key information about the relative energy efficiency of the home, as well as estimated monthly electric and gas costs for homeowners. We believe this will change the way people shop for homes as they can now better quantify their total cost of homeownership, of which utilities are a significant part. With the EPG, consumers can clearly recognize the tremendous financial benefits of owning an energy-efficient KB home, especially when compared to resale homes.

Restoring our Profitability

All of these actions have been aimed at our primary goal of restoring profitability. Our achievement in this regard, including reporting our first pretax profit in nearly four years in the fourth quarter of 2010, is one in which all of us at KB Home take great pride, and our team is eager to build on these results in the coming year.

We know we have more to do and there will be additional challenges ahead as we anticipate difficult economic conditions will continue to mitigate a housing recovery. Nevertheless, we believe we have laid the foundation for a bright future at KB Home.

Investing in our Future

Indeed, even as we have repositioned our business and reduced our overhead, we have been careful to preserve our company's growth platform. We currently operate in 30 of the best long-term growth markets in the country. And in 2010, we invested $560 million in land and land development in desirable locations within those markets at very attractive lot prices. Even with our substantial investments, we maintained a strong and liquid balance sheet with over $1 billion in total cash at year-end, which we feel allows us to continue to be nimble and opportunistic going forward. We have the right products, the right markets, and the right strategy. Most important, we have the right team in place to execute on our proven strategy today, and to take KB Home to the next level of performance as housing markets recover. In the process, we look forward to creating lasting value for our stockholders, our employees and our customers.

Thank you for your continued investment in KB Home.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey T. Mezger

President and Chief Executive Officer
